AN

OF THE

LIFE AND WRITINGS

OF

MR. JAMES THOMSON.

It is commonly said, that the life of a good writer is best read in his works; which can scarce sail to receive a peculiar tincture from his temper, manners and habits; the distinguishing character of his mind, his ruling passion, at least, will there appear undisguised. But however just this observation may be; and although we might safely rest Mr. Thomson's same, as a good man, as well as a man of genius, on this sole sooting; yet the desire which the public always shews of being more particularly acquainted with the history of an eminent author, ought not to be disappointed; as it proceeds not from mere curiosity, but chiefly from affection and gratitude to those by whom they have been entertained and instructed.

To give some account of a deceased friend is often a piece of justice likewise, which ought not to be refused to his memory: to prevent or efface the impertinent fictions which officious Biographers are fo apt to collect and propagate, And we may add, that the circumstances of an author's life will fometimes throw the best light upon his writings; inflances whereof we shall meet with in the following pages.

Mr. Thomson was born at Ednam, in the shire of Roxburgh, on the 11th of September, in the year 1700. His father, minister of that place, was but little known beyond the narrow circle of his copresbyters, and to a few gentlemen in the neighbourhood; but highly respected by them, for his piery, and his diligence in the paftoral duty: as appeared afterwards in their kind offices to his widow and orphan family.

The Reverend Meffrs, Riccarton and Gufthart particularly, took a most affectionate and friendly part in all their concerns. The former, a man of uncommon penetration and good tafte, had very early discovered, through the rudeness of young Thomfon's puerile effays, a fund of genius well deferving culture and encouragement. He undertook therefore, with the father's approbation, the chief direction of his studies, furnished him with the proper books; corrected his performances; and was daily rewarded with the pleasure of seeing his labour so happily employed.

The other reverend gentleman, Mr. Gusthare, who is still living, one of the ministers of Edinburgh, and senior of the Chapel Royal, was no less serviceable to Mrs. Thomson in the management of her little affairs; which, after the decease of her husband, burdened as she was with a family of nine children, required the prudent counsels and affishance of that faithful and generous friend.

Sir William Bennet likewise, well known for his gay humour and ready poetical wit, was highly delighted with our young poer, and used to invite him to pass the summer vacation at his country feat: a scene of life which Mr. Thomson always remembered with particular pleasure. But what he wrote during that time, either to entertain Sir William and Mr. Riccarton, or for his own amusement, he destroyed every new year's day; committing his little pieces to the slames, in their due order; and crowning the solemnity with a copy of verses, in which were humorously recited the several grounds of their condemnation.

After the usual course of school education, under an able master at Jedburgh, Mr. Thomson was sent to the University of Edinburgh. But in the second year of his admission, his studies were for some time interrupted by the death of his father; who was carried off so suddenly, that it was not possible for Mr. Thomson, with all the diligence he could use, to receive his last blessing. This affected him to an uncommon degree; and his relations still remember some extraordinary instances of his grief and filial duty on that occasion,

Mrs. Thomson, whose maiden name was Hume, and who was co-heires of a small estate in the country, did not sink under this missortune. She consulted her friend Mr. Gusthare; and having, by his advice, mortgaged her moiety of the farm, repaired with her family to Edinburgh; where she lived in a decent frugal manner, till her favourite son had not only sinished his academical course, but was even distinguished and patronized as a man of genius. She was, herself, a person of uncommon natural endowments; possessed of every social and domestic virtue; with an imagination, for vivacity and warmth, scarce inserior to her son's, and which raised her devotional exercises to a pitch bordering on enthusiasm.

But whatever advantage Mr. Thomfon might derive from the complexion of his parent, it is certain he owed much to a religious education; and that his early acquaintance with the facred writings contributed greatly to that fublime, by which his works will be for ever diftinguished. In his first pieces, the Seafons, we see him at once assume the majestic freedom of an Eastern writer; seizing the grand images as they rise, cloathing them in his own expressive language, and preserving, throughout, the grace, the variety, and the dignity

About this time, the study of poetry was become general in Scotland, the best English authors being universally read, and imitations of them attempted. Addison had lately displayed the beauties of Milton's immortal work; and his remarks on it, together with M. Pope's celebrated Essay, had opened the way to an acquaintance with the best poets and critics.

But the most learned critic is not always the best judge of poetry; taste being a gift of nature, the want of which , Ariftotle and Boffe cannot fupply; nor even the fludy of the best originals, when the reader's faculties are not tuned in a certain confonance to those of the poet : and this happened to be the case with certain learned gentlemen, into whose hands a few of Mr. Thomson's first estays had fallen. Some inaccuracies of stile, and those luxuriancies which a young writer can hardly avoid, lay open to their cavils and censure; fo far indeed they might be competent judges: but the fire and enthusiasm of the poet had entirely escaped their notice. Mr. Thomson, however, conscious of his own strength, was not discouraged by this treatment; especially as he had some friends on whose judgment he could better rely, and who thought very differently of his performances. Only, from that time, he began to turn his views towards London; where works of genius may always expect a candid reception and due encouragement; and an accident soon after entirely determined him to try his fortune there.

The divinity chair at Edinburgh was then filled by the reverend and learned Mr. Hamilton; a gentleman univerfally respected and beloved; and who had particularly endeared himself to the young divines under his care, by his kind offices, his candor and affability. Our author had attended his lectures for about a year, when there was prescribed to him for the subject of an exercise, a Pfalm, in which the power and majefty of God are celebrated. Of this pfalm he gave a paraphrase and illustration, as the nature of the exercise required; but in a flyle fo highly poetical as furprized the whole audience. Mr. Hamilton, as his custom was, complimented the orator upon his performance, and pointed out to the fludents the most masterly striking parts of it; but at laft, turning to Mr. Thomfon, he told him, fmiling, that if he thought of being useful in the ministry, he must keep a stricter rein upon his imagination, and express himself in language more intelligible to an ordinary congregation.

This gave Mr. Thomson to understand, that his expectations from the study of theology might be very precarious; even though the Church had been more his free choice than probably it was.

So that having, foon after, received fome encouragement from a lady of quality, a friend of his mother's, then in London, he quickly prepared himself for his journey. And although this encouragement ended in nothing beneficial, it served for the present as a good pretext, to cover the imprudence of committing himself to the wide world, unfriended and unpatronized, and with the slender stock of money he was then possessed

But his merit did not long lye concealed. Mr. Forbes, afterwards Lord Prefident of the Seffion, then attending the fervice of Parliament, having feen a specimen of Mr. Thomson's poetry in Scotland, received him very kindly, and recommended him to fome of his friends, particularly to Mr. Aikman, who lived in great intimacy with many persons of distinguished rank and worth, This gentleman, from a connoisseur in painting. was become a profess'd painter; and his tafte being no less just and delicate in the kindred art of descriptive poetry, then in his own, no wonder that he foon conceived a friendship for our author. What a warm return he met with, and how Mr. Thomson was affected by his friend's premature death, appears in the copy of verses which he wrote on that occasion.

In the mean time, our author's reception, whereever he was introduced, emboldened him to rifque the publication of his Winter; in which,

as himself was a mere novice in such matters; he was kindly affished by Mr. Mallet, then printed to his Grace the Duke of Montrose, and his brother the Lord George Graham, so well known afterwards as an able and gallant sea officer. To Mr. Mallet he likewise owed his first acquaintance with several of the wits of that time, an exact information of their characters, personal and poetical, and how they stood affected to each other.

The Poem of Winter, published in March 1726. was no fooner read than univerfally admired; those only excepted who had not been used to feel, or to look for, any thing in poetry, beyond a point of fatirical or epigrammatic wit, a fmart antithefis richly trimmed with rhime, or. the foftness of an elegiac complaint. To such his manly claffical spirit could not readily recommend itself; till after a more attentive perusal, they had got the better of their prejudices, and either acquired or affected a truer taste. A few others flood aloof, merely because they had long before fixed the articles of their poetical creed, and refigned themselves to an absolute despair of ever feeing any thing new and original. These were fomewhat mortified te find their notions disturbed by the appearance of a poet, who seemed to owe nothing but to nature and his own genius. But, in a short time, the applause became manimous; every one wondering how so many pictures, and pictures so familiar, should have moved them but faintly to what they felt in his descriptions. His digressions too, the overslowings of a render benevolent heart, charm'd the reader no less; leaving him in doubt, whether he should more admire the Poet, or love the Man.

From that time Mr. Thomfon's acquaintance was courted by all men of tafte; and feveral ladies of high rank and distinction became his declared patronesses: the Counters of Henford, Miss Drelincourt, afterwards Viscountess Primrofe, Mrs. Stanley, and others. But the chief happiness which his Winter procured him, was that it brought him acquainted with Dr. Rundle, afterwards Lord Bishop of Derry; who, upon conversing with Mr. Thomfon, and finding in him qualities greater fill, and of more value, than those of a poet, received him into his intimate confidence and friendship; promoted his character every where; introduced him to his great friend the Lord Chancellor Talbot; and, some years after, when the eldeft fon of that nobleman was to make his tour of travelling, recommended Mr. Thomfon as a proper companion for him. His affection and gratitude to Dr. Rundle, and his indignation at the treatment that worthy prelate had met with, are finely expressed in his poem to the memory of Lord Talbor. The true cause of that undeserved

Meanwhile, our poet's chief care had been, in return for the public favour, to finish the plan which their wishes laid out for him; and the expectations which his Winter had raifed, were fully fatisfied by the fuccessive publication of the other Seasons: of Summer, in the year 1727; of Spring, in the beginning of the following year; and of Autumn, in a quarto edition of his works, printed in 1730.

In that edition, the Seasons are placed in their natural order; and crown'd with that inimitable Hymn, in which we view them in their beautiful succession, as one whole, the immediate effect of infinite Power and Goodness. In imitation of the Hebrew Bard, all nature is called forth to do homage to the Creator, and the reader is left enraptur'd in filent adoration and praise.

Besides these, and his tragedy of Sophonisha, written, and acted with applause, in the year 1729; Mr. Thomson had, in 1727, published his poem to the Memory of Sir Isaac Newson, then lately deceased; containing a deserved encomium of that incomparable man, with an account of his chief discoveries, sublimely poetical, and yet so just, that an ingenious foreigner, the Count Algarotti, takes a line of it for the text of his philosophical dialogues, Il Neutonianismo per le dame: this was in part owing to the affistance he had of his friend Mr. Gray, a gentleman well versed in the Newtonian Philosophy, who, on that occasion, gave him a very exact, though general, abstract of its principles.

That same year, the resentment of our merchants, for the interruption of their trade by the Spaniards in America, running very high, Mr. Thomson zealously took part in it, and wrote his poem Britannia, to rouse the nation to revenge. And although this piece is the less read that its subject was but accidental and temporary; the spirited generous sentiments that enrich it, can never be out of season: they will at least remain a monument of that love of his country, that devotion to the public, which he is ever inculcating as the persection of virtue, and which none ever felt more pure, or more intense, than himself.

Our author's poetical fludies were now to be interrupted, or rather improved, by his attendance on the honourable Mr. Charles Talbot in his travels. A delightful task indeed! endowed as that young nobleman was by nature, and accomplished by the care and example of the best of fathers, in whatever could adorn humanity; graceful of person, elegant in manners and address, pious, humane, generous, with an exquisite taste in all the finer arts.

With this amiable companion and friend, Mr. Thomson visited most of the courts and capital cities of Europe; and returned with his views greatly enlarged, not of exterior nature-only, and the works of art, but of human life and manners, of the constitution and policy of the feveral states, their connexions, and their religious inflitutions. How particular and judicious his obfervations were, we fee in his poem of Liberty, begun foon after his return to England. We fee at the same time, to what a high pitch his love of his country was raifed, by the comparisons he had all along been making of our happy wellpoifed government with those of other nations. To inspire his fellow-subjects with the like sentiments; and to shew them by what means the precious freedom we enjoy may be preserved, and how it may be abused or loft; he employed two years of his life in composing that noble work: upon which, conscious of the importance and dignity of the subject, he valued himself more than upon all his other writings.

While Mr. Thomson was writing the First Part of Liberty, he received a severe shock, by the death of his noble friend and fellow traveller; which was foon followed by another that was feverer still, and of more general concern, the death of Lord Talbot himfelf; which Mr. Thomfon fo pathetically and fo juftly laments in the poem dedicated to his memory. In him, the nation faw itself deprived of an uncorrupted patriot, the faithful guardian of their rights, on whose wisdom and integrity they had founded their hopes of relief from many tedious vexations: and Mr. Thomson, besides his share in the general mourning, had to bear all the affliction which a heart like his could feel, for the person whom, of all mankind, he most revered and loved. At the fame time, he found himfelf. from an easy competency, reduced to a state of precarious dependance, in which he paffed the remainder of his life; excepting only the two last years of it, during which he enjoyed the place of Surveyor General of the Leeward Islands, procured for him by the generous friendship of my Lord Lyttelton. O and a walked beat hall saintovik helds

Immediately upon his return to England with Mr. Talbot, the Chancellor had made him his fecretary of Briefs; a place of little attendance, fuiring his retired indolent way of life, and equal to all his wants. This place fell with his patron; and although the noble Lord, who fucceeded to Lord Talbot in office, kept it vacant for some time, probably till Mr. Thomson should apply for it, he was so dispirite ed, and so listless to every concern of that kind, that he never took one step in the affair; a neglect which his best friends greatly blamed in him.

Yet could not his genius be depressed, or his temper hurt, by this reverse of fortune. He resumed, with time, his usual chearfulness, and never abated one article in his way of living; which, though simple, was genial and elegant. The profits arising from his works were not inconsiderable; his tragedy of Agamemnon, acted in 1738, yielded a good sum; Mr. Millar was always at hand, to answer, or even to prevent, his demands; and he had a friend or two besides, whose hearts, he knew, were not contracted by the ample fortunes they had acquired; who would, of themselves, interpose, if they saw any occasion for it.

But his chief dependance, during this long interval, was on the protection and bounty of His Royal Highness Frederic Prince of Wales; who, upon the recommendation of Lord Lyttelton, then his chief favourite, settled on him a handsome allowance. And afterwards, when he was introduced to His Royal Highness, that excellent prince, who truly was what Mr. Thomson paints him, the friend of mankind and of merit, received him very graciously, and ever after honoured him with many marks of particular favour and confidence. A circumstance, which does equal honour to the patron and the poet, ought not here to be omitted; that my Lord Lyttelton's recommendation came altogether unfollicited, and long before Mr. Thomas, for was personally known to him.

It happened, however, that the favour of his Royal Highness was in one instance of some prejudice to our author; in the refusal of a licence for his tragedy of Edward and Eleonora, which he had prepared for the stage in the year 1739. The reader may see that this play contains not a line which could justly give offence; but the ministry, still fore from certain pasquinades, which had lately produced the stage-act; and as little satisfied with some parts of the prince's political conduct, as he was with their management of the public affairs; would not risque the representation of a piece written under his eye, and, they might probably think, by his command.

This refusal drew after it another; and in a way which, as it is related, whas rather ludicrous. Mr. Pauerson, a companion of Mr. Thomson, afterwards his deputy, and then his successor in the general-surveyorship, used to write out fair copies for his friend, when such were wanted for the press or for the stage. This gentleman likewise courted the tragic muse, and had taken for his subject, the story of Arminius the German hero. But his play, guiltless as it was, being presented for a licence, no sooner had the censor cast his eyes on the hand-writing in which he had seen Edward and Eleonora, than he cried out, Away with it! and the author's profits were reduced to whathis bookfeller could afford for a tragedy in diffress.

Mr. Thomson's next dramatic performance was the Masque of Alfred, written, jointly with Mr. Mallet, by command of the Prince of Wales, for the entertainment of His Royal Highness's court, at his summer-residence. This piece, with some salterations, and the music new, has been since brought upon the stage by Mr. Mallet: but the edition we give is from the original, at is was acted at Clisten, in the year 1740, on the birth-day of Her Royal Highness the Princess Augusta.

In the year 1745, his Tancred and Sigismunda, taken from the novel in Gil Blas, was performed with applause; and from the deep romantic distress of the lovers, continues to draw crowded houses. The success of this piece was indeed ensured from the first, by Mr. Garrick and Mrs. Cibber, their appearing in the principal characters; which they heighten and adorn with all the magic of their neverfailing art.

He had, in the mean time, been finishing his Caftle of Indolence, in two Cantos. It was, at first, little more than a few detached stanzas, in the way of raillery on himself, and on some of his friends, who would reproach him with indolence; while he thought them, at least, as indolent as himself. But he saw very soon, that the subject

The stanza which he uses in this work is that of Spenser, borrowed from the Italian poets; in which he thought rhimes had their proper-place, and were even graceful: the compass of the stanza admitting an agreeable variety of final sounds; while the sense of the poet is not cramped or cut short, not yet too much dilated: as must often happen, when it is parcelled out into rhimed couplets; the usual measure, indeed, of our elegy and staire; but which always weakens the higher poetry, and, to a true ear, will sometimes give it an air of the burlesque.

This was the last piece Mr. Thomson himself published; his tragedy of Coriolanus being only prepared for the theatre, when a fatal accident robbed the world of one of the best men, and best poets, that lived in it.

He had always been a timorous horseman; and more so, in a road where numbers of giddy or unskilful riders are continually passing: so that when the weather did not invite him to go by water, he would commonly walk the distance between London and Richmond, with any acquaintance that offered; with whom he might chat and rest himself, or perhaps dine, by the way. One summer evening, being alone, in his walk from town to Hammersmith, he had overheated himself, and in that condition, imprudently took a boat to carry him to Kew; apprehending no bad confequence from the chill air on the river, which his walk to his house, at the upper end of Kew-lane, had always hitherto prevented. But, now, the told had so feized him, that next day he found himself in a high fever, fo much the more to be dreaded that he was of a full habit. This however, by the use of proper medicines, was removed, so that he was thought to be out of danger; till the fine weather having tempted him to expose himself once more to the evening dews, his fever returned with violence, and with fuch fymptoms as left no hopes of a cure. Two days had paffed before his relapse was known in town; at last Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Reid, with Dr. Armstrong, being informed of it, posted out at midnight to his assistance : but alas! came only to endure a fight of all others the most shocking to nature, the last agonies of their beloved friend. This lamented death happened on the 27th day of August. 1748.

His testamentary executors were, the Lord Lyttelton, whose care of our poet's fortune and same ceased not with his life, and Mr. Mitchell, a gentleman equally noted for the truth and constancy of his private friendships, and for his address and spirit as a public minister. By their united interest, the orphan play of Coriolanus was brought on the stage to the best advantage; from the profits of which, and the sale of manuscripts, and other effects, all demands were duly satisfied, and a handsome sum remitted to his sisters. My Lord Lytteston's prologue to this piece was admired as one of the best that had ever been written; the best spoken it certainly was. The sympathizing audience saw that, then indeed, Mr. Quin was no actor; that the tears he shed, were those of real friendship and grief.

Mr. Thomson's remains were deposited in the church of Richmond, under a plain stone, without any inscription: nor did his brother poets at all exert themselves on the occasion, as they had lately done for one who had been the terror of poets all his life-time. This silence furnished matter to one of his friends for an excellent satirical episgram, which we are forry we cannot give the reader. Only one gentleman, Mr. Collins, who had lived some time at Richmond, but forsook it when Mr. Thomson died, wrote an Ode to his memory. This, for the dirgelike melancholy it breathes, and the warmth of affection that seems to have dictated it, we shall subjoin to the present account.

Our author himself hints, somewhere in his works, that his exterior was not the most promising; his make being rather robust than graceful: though it is known that in his youth he had been thought handsome. His worst appearance was, when you faw him walking alone, in a thoughtful mood; but let a friend accost him. and enter into conversation, he would instantly brighten in a most amiable aspect, his features no longer the same, and his eye darting a pecu-·liar animated fire. The cafe was much alike in company; where, if it was mixed, or very numerous, he made but an indifferent figure : but with a few felect friends, he was open, fprightly, and entertaining. His wit flowed freely, but pertinently, and at due intervals, leaving room for every one to contribute his share. Such was his extreme fenfibility, so perfect the harmony of his organs with the fentiments of his mind, that his looks always announced, and half expressed what he was about to fay; and his voice conresponded exactly to the manner and degree in which he was affected. This fenfibility had one inconvenience attending it, that it rendered him the very worst reader of good poetry : a fonnet, or a copy of tame verses, he could manage pretty well; or even improve them in the reading; but a passage of Virgil, Milton, or Shakespeare, would fometimes quite oppress him, that you could heat little else than some ill-articulated sounds, rising as from the bottom of his breaft.

He had improved his tafte upon the best originals, ancient and modern; but could not bear to write what was not strictly his own, what had not more immediately struck his imagination, or touched his heart: so that he is not in the least concerned in that question about the merit or demerit of imitators. What he borrows from the ancients, he gives us in an avowed faithful paraphrase or translation; as we see in a few passages taken from Virgil, and in that beautiful picture from Pliny the elder, where the course, and gradual increase, of the Nile, are figured by the stages of man's life.

The autumn was his favourite feason for poetical composition, and the deep silence of the night, the time he commonly chose for such studies; so that he would often be heard walking in his library, till near morning, humming over, in his way, what he was to correct and write out next day.

The amusements of his leisure hours were civil and natural history, voyages, and the relations of travellers, the most authentic he could procure: and had his situation favoured it, he would certainly have excelled in gardening, agriculture, and every rural improvement and exercise. Although he performed on no instrument, he was passionately fond of music, and would sometimes listen a full hour at his window to the nightingales in Richmond gardens. While abroad, he had been greatly delighted with the regular

Italian drama, such as Metastasio writes; as it is there heightened by the charms of the best voices and instruments; and looked upon our theatrical entertainments, as, in one respect, naked and impersect, when compared with the ancient, or with those of Italy; wishing sometimes that a chorus, at least, and a better recitative, could be introduced.

Nor was his take less exquisite in the arts of painting, sculpture, and architecture. In his travels, he had feen all the most celebrated monuments of antiquity, and the best productions of modern art; and fludied them so minutely, and with so true a judgment, that in some of his descriptions, in the poem of Liberty, we have the mafterpieces there mentioned placed in a stronger light perhaps, than if we faw them with our eyes; at least more justly delineated than in any other account extant: fo superior is a natural taste of the grand and beautiful, to the traditional lessons of a common virtuofo. His collection of prints, and fome drawings from the antique, are now in the possession of his friend Mr. Gray of Richmond Hill.

As for his more diffinguishing qualities of mind and heart, they are better represented in his writings, than they can be by the pen of any biographer. There, his love of mankind, of his country and friends; his devotion to the Supreme Being, founded on the most elevated and just conceptions of his operations and providence, shine out in every page. So unbounted was his tenderness of heart, that it took in even the brute creation: judge what it must have been towards his own species. He is not indeed known , through his whole life, to have given any person one moment's pain, by his writings or otherwife. He took no part in the poetical squabbles which happened in his time; and was respected and left undisturbed by both sides. He would even refuse to take offence when he infly might; by interrupting any personal story that was brought him, with fome jeft, or fome humorous apology for the offender. Nor was he ever feen ruffled or discomposed, but when he read or heard of some flagrant instance of injustice, oppression, or cruelty: then, indeed, the strongest marks of horror and indignation were visible in his countenance.

These amiable virtues, this divine temper of mind, did not fail of their due reward. His friends loved him with an enthusiastic ardor, and lamented his untimely fate in the manner that is still fresh in every one's memory; the best and greatest men of his time honoured him with their friendship and protection; the applause of the public attended every appearance he made; the actors, of whom the more eminent were his friends and admirers, grudging no pains to do justice to his tragedies. At present indeed, if we except Tancred, they are feldom called for; the fimplicity of his plots, and the models he worked after, not fuiting the reigning tafte, nor the impatience of an English theatre. They may hereafter come to be in vogue: but we hazard no comment or conjecture upon them, or upon any part of Mr. Thomfon's works; neither need they any defence or apology, after the reception they have had at home, and in the foreign languages into which they have been translated. We shall only fay, that, to judge from the imitations of his manner, which have been following him close. from the very first publication of Winter, he feems to have fixed no inconfiderable æra of the English poetry. the fina, or cruelty; then, thised, the DEATH OF MR. THOMSON.

BY M. COLLINS.

The scene of the following stanzas is supposed to lie on the Thames near Richmond.

I.

In yonder grave a Druid lies
Where flowly winds the stealing wave!
The year's best sweets shall duteous rise
To deck its Poet's sylvan grave!

II.

In you deep bed of whisp'ring reeds

His airy harp * shall now be laid,

That he, whose heart in forrow bleeds,

May love thro' life the foothing shade.

* The harp of Æolus, of which fee a description in the Castle of Indolence.

IV.

Remembrance oft shall haunt the shore
When Thames in fummer wreaths is dreft,
And oft fuspend the dashing oar
To bid his gentle spirit reft!

V.

And oft as Ease and Health retire

To breezy lawn, or forest deep,

The friend shall view you whitening * spire,
And 'mid the varied landscape weep.

That mourn beneath the gliding fail!

Shall scorn thy pale shrine glimm'ring near a
With him, sweet bard, may Fancy die,
And Joy desert the blooming year.

VIII

But thou, lorn stream, whose sullen tide
No sedge-crown'd Sisters now attend,
Now wast me from the green hill's side
Whose cold turf hides the buried friend!

IX.

And see, the fairy valleys fade,

Dun Night has veil'd the solemn view!

Yet once again, dear parted shade,

Meek Nature's Child, again adieu!

And fee where furly WINTER passes off,
Far to the north, and calls his ruffian blasts:
His blasts obey, and quit the howling hill,
The shatter'd forest, and the ravag'd vale;
While softer gales succeed, at whose kind touch,
Dissolving snows in livid torrents lost,
The mountains lift their green heads to the sky.

As yet the trembling year is unconfirm'd;
And WINTER oft at eve refumes the breeze,
Chills the pale morn, and bids his driving fleets
Deform the day delightless: so that scarce
The bittern knows his time, with bill ingulpht
To shake the sounding marsh; or from the shore
The plovers when to scatter o'er the heath,
And fing their wild notes to the listening waste.

At last from Aries rolls the bounteous sun, And the bright Bull receives him. Then no more Th' expansive atmosphere is cramp'd with cold; But, sull of life and vivisying soul, Lists the light clouds sublime, and spreads them thin, Fleecy and white, o'er all-surrounding heaven,

Forth fly the tepid airs; and unconfin'd,
Unbinding earth, the moving fortness strays.
Joyous, th' impatient husbandman perceives
Relenting Nature, and his lufty steers (plough
Drives from their stalls, to where the well-us'd
Lies in the furrow, loosened from the frost.
There, unresusing, to the harness'd yoke
They lend their shoulder, and begin their toil,
Chear'd by the simple fong and soaring lark,
Meanwhile incumbent o'er the shining share
The master leans, removes th' obstructing clay,
Winds the whole work, and sidelong lays the glebe.

Think these lost themes unworthy of your ear:
Such themes as these the rural MARO sung
To wide-imperial ROME, in the sull height
Of elegance and taste, by GREECE resin'd.
In ancient times, the sacred plough employ'd
The kings, and awful fathers of mankind:
And some, with whom compar'd your insect-tribes
Are but the beings of a summer's day,
Have held the scale of empire, rul'd the storm
Of mighty war; then, with unwearied hand,
Distaining little delicacies, seiz'd
The plough, and greatly independent liv'd.

Ye generous BRITONS, venerate the plough;
And o'er your hills, and long withdrawing vales,
Let Autumn spread his treasures to the sun,
Euxuriant and unbounded: as the sea,
Far thro'his azure turbulent domain,
Your empire owns, and from a thousand shores
Wasts all the pomp of life into your ports;
So with superior boon may your rich soil,
Exuberant, Nature's better blessings pour
O'er every land, the naked nations clothe;
And be th' exhaustless granary of a world!

Nor only thro' the lenient air this change,
Delicious, breathes; the penetrative fun,
His force deep-darting to the dark retreat
Of vegetation, fets the fleaming Power
At large; to wander o'er the vernant earth,
In various hues; but chiefly thee, gay Green!

Thou fmiling Nature's univerfal robe!
United light and shade! where the fight dwells
With growing ftrength, and ever-new delight.

From the moift meadow to the withered hill, Led by the breeze, the vivid verdure runs, And fwells, and deepens, to the cherish'd eve. The hawthorn whitens; and the juicy groves Put forth their buds, unfolding by degrees, Till the whole leafy forest stands display'd, In full luxuriance to the fighing gales; Where the deer ruftle thro'the twining brake, And the birds fing conceal'd. At once array'd In all the colours of the flushing year, By Nature's fwift and fecret-working hand, The garden glows, and fills the liberal air With lavish fragrance; while the promis'd fruit Lies yet a little embryo, unperceiv'd, Within its crimfon folds. Rise not, and scatter from his humid wings
The clammy mildew; or, dry-blowing, breathe
Untimely frost; before whose baleful blast
The full-blown Spring thro' all her foliage shrinks,
Joyless and dead, a wide-dejected waste.

For oft, engender'd by the hazy north,

Myriads on myriads, infect armies warp

Keen in the poison'd breeze; and wasteful eat, Thro'buds and bark, into the blackened core,

Their eager way. A feeble race! yet oft
The facred fons of vengeance; on whose course
Corrosive famine waits, and kills the year.

To check this plague the skilful farmer chaff,
And blazing ftraw, before his orchard burns;
Till, all involv'd in fmoke, the latent foe

From every cranny suffocated falls:

Or scatters o'er the blooms the pungent dust

Of pepper, fatal to the frosty tribe:

Or, when th' envenom'd leaf begins to curl, With sprinkled water drowns them in their nest; Nor, while they pick them up with busy bill, The little trooping birds unwisely scares.

Be patient, swains; these cruel-seeming winds Blow not in vain. Far hence they keep repress'd Those deepening clouds on clouds, surcharg'd with rain,

That o'er the vast Atlantic hither borne,

In endless train, would quench the summer-blaze, And, chearless, drown the crude unripened year.

Fir'd by the nodding verdure of its brow.
With such a liberal hand has Nature slung
Their seeds abroad, blown them about in winds,
Innumerous mix'd them with the nursing mold,

While yet he liv'd in innocence, and told
A length of golden years; unflesh'd in blood,
A stranger to the savage arts of life,

Was known among those happy sons of HEAVEN; For reason and benevolence were law. Harmonious Nature too look'd fmiling on. Clear shone the skies, cool'd with eternal gales. And balmy fpirit all. The youthful fun Shot his best rays, and still the gracious clouds Drop'd fatness down; as o'er the swelling mead, The herds and flocks, commixing, play'd fecure. This when, emergent from the gloomy wood, The glaring lion faw, his horrid heart Was meekened, and he join'd his fullen joy. For music held the whole in perfect peace: Soft figh'd the flute; the tender voice was heard, Warbling the varied heart; the woodlands round Apply'd their quire; and winds and waters flow'd In confonance. And o'er the high-pil'd hills of fractur'd earth Wide dash'd the waves, in undulation vast;
Till, from the center to the streaming clouds,
A shoreless ocean tumbled round the globe.

The Seasons since have, with severer sway, Oppress'd a broken world: the Winter keen Shook forth his waste of snows; and Summer shot His pestilential heats. Great Spring, before, Green'd all the year; and fruits and blossoms blush'd.

In focial fweetness, on the self-same bough.

Pure was the temperate air; an even calm

Perpetual reign'd, save what the zephyrs bland

Breath'd o'er the blue expanse: for then nor storms

Were taught to blow, nor hurricanes to rage;

Sound slept the waters; no sulphureous glooms

Swell'd in the sky, and sent the lightning forth;

While sickly damps, and cold autumnal fogs,

Hung not, relaxing, on the springs of life.

But now, of turbid elements the sport,

From clear to cloudy tost, from hot to cold,

And dry to moist, with inward-eating change,

Our drooping days are dwindled down to nought,

Their period finish'd ere tis well begun.

And yet the wholesome herb neglected dies; Though with the pure exhilarating soul Of nutriment and health, and vital powers, Beyond the search of art, 'ris copious blest. For, with hot ravine fir'd, ensanguin'd Man 1

To swell the riot of th' autumnal feast,
Won by his labour? Thus the feeling heart
Would tenderly suggest: but 'tis enough,
In this late age, adventurous, to have touch'd
Light on the numbers of the Samian Sage,
High HEAVEN forbids the bold presumptuous strain,
Whose wifest will has fix'd us in a state
That must not yet to pure perfection rise.

Now when the first foul torrent of the brooks, Swell'd with the vernal rains, is ebb'd away, And, whitening, down their mosty-rinctur'd stream Descends the billowy foam: now is the time, While yet the dark-brown water aids the guile, To tempt the trout. The well-differented sty, The rod fine-tapering with elastic spring, Snatch'd from the hoary steed the floating line, And all thy stender watry stores prepare.

But let not on thy hook the tortur'd worm, Convulsive, twist in agonizing folds;

Which, by rapacious hunger swallow'd deep, Gives, as you tear it stom-the bleeding breast Of the weak helpless uncomplaining wretch, Harsh pain and horror to the tender hand.

When with his lively ray the potent fun Has piere'd the streams, and rous'd the finny race, Then, iffuing chearful, to thy sport repair; Chief should the western breezes curling play, And light o'er ether bear the shadowy clouds. High to their fount, this day, amid the hills,

And woodlands warbling round, trace up the brooks;

The next, purfue their rocky-channel'd maze, Down to the river, in whose ample wave Their little Naiads love to sport at large. Just in the dubious point, where with the pool Is mix'd the trembling stream, or where it boils Around the stone, or from the hollow'd bank Reverted plays in undulating flow, There throw, nice-judging, the delufive fly; And as you lead it round in artful curve, With eye attentive mark the springing game, Strait as above the furface of the flood They wanton rife, or urg'd by hunger leap, Then fix, with gentle twitch, the barbed hook: Some lightly toffing to the graffy bank, And to the shelving shore flow-dragging fome, With various hand proportion'd to their force. If yet too young, and easily deceiv'd, A worthless prey scarce bends your pliant rod, Him, piteous of his youth and the short space He has enjoy'd the vital light of Heaven, Soft disengage, and back into the stream The speckled captive throw. But should you lure From his dark haunt, beneath the tangled roots Of pendant trees, the monarch of the brook, Behoves you then to ply your finest art. The dimpled water speaks his jealous fear.

At last, while haply o'er the shaded sun
Passes a cloud, he desperate takes the death;
With sullen plunge. At once he darts along,
Deep-struck, and runs out all the lengthened line;
Then seeks the farthest ooze, the sheltering weed,
The cavern'd bank, his old secure abode;
And sies alost, and slounces round the pool,
Indignant of the guile. With yielding hand,
That seels him still, yet to his furious course
Gives way, you, now retiring, following now
Across the stream, exhaust his idle rage:
Till sloating broad upon his breathless side,
And to his sate abandon'd, to the shore
You gaily drag your unresisting prize.

Thus pass the temperate hours: but when the sun Shakes from his noon-day throne the scattering clouds,

Even shooting liftless languor thro' the deeps;
Then seek the bank where flowering elders croud,
Where scatter'd wild the lily of the vale
Its balmy effence breathes, where cowslips hang
The dewy head, where purple violets lurk,
With all the lowly children of the shade:
Or lie reclin'd beneath yon spreading ash,
Hungo'er the steep; whence, borne on liquid wing,
The sounding culver shoots, or where the hawk,
High, in the beetling cliff, his airy builds.
There let the classic page thy fancy lead

Thro' rural scenes; such as the Mantuan Swain
Paints in the matchless harmony of song.
Or catch thyself the landskip, gliding swift
Athwart imagination's vivid eye:
Or by the vocal woods and waters lull'd,
And lost in lonely musing, in the dream,
Confus'd, of careless solitude, where mix
Ten thousand wandering images of things,
Soothe every gust of passion into peace;
All but the swellings of the soften'd heart,
That waken, not disturb, the tranquil mind.

Behold yon breathing prospect bids the Muse
Throw all her beauty forth. But who can paint
Like Nature? Can imagination boast,
Amid its gay creation, hues like hers?
Or can it mix them with that matchless skill,
And lose them in each other, as appears he every bud that blows? If fancy then
Unequal fails beneath the pleasing task,
Ah what shall language do? ah where find words
Ting'd with so many colours; and whose power,
To life approaching, may perfume my lays
With that fine oil, those aromatic gales,
That inexhaustive flow continual round?

Yet, tho' successless, will the toil delight.

Come then, ye virgins and ye youths, whose Have felt the raptures of refining love; (hearts And thou, AMANDA, come, pride of my song! Form'd by the Graces, loveliness itself!

Come with those downcast eyes, sedate and sweet, Those looks demure, that deeply pierce the soul, Where, with the light of thoughtful reason mix'd, Shines lively fancy and the seeling heart:

O come! and while the rosy-sooted May
Steals blushing on, together let us tread
The morning dews, and gather in their prime
Fresh blooming flowers, to grace thy braided hair,
And thy lov'd bosom that improves their sweets.

See, where the winding vale its lavish stores, Irriguous, spreads. See, how the lily drinks The latent rill, scarce oozing thro' the grass, Of growth luxuriant; or the humid bank, In fair profusion, decks. Long let us walk, Where the breeze blows from you extended field Of bloffom'd beans. Arabia cannot boaft A fuller gale of joy, than, liberal, thence Breathes thro' the sense, and takes the ravish'd foul, Nor is the mead unworthy of thy foot, Full of fresh verdure, and unnumber'd flowers, The negligence of Nature, wide, and wild; Where, undifguis'd by mimic Art, she spreads Unbounded beauty to the roving eye. Here their delicious task the fervent bees, In fwarming millions, tend: around, athwart, Thro' the foft air, the bufy nations fly, Cling to the bud, and, with inferted tube, Suck its pure effence, its ethereal foul; And oft, with bolder wing, they foaring dare

The purple heath, or where the wild thyme grows.

And yellow load them with the lufcious fpoil.

At length the finish'd garden to the view Its vistas opens , and its alleys green. Snatch'd thro' the verdant maze, the hurried eve Diffracted wanders; now the bowery walk Of covert close, where scarce a speck of day Falls on the lengthen'd gloom, protracted fweeps: Now meets the bending sky; the river now Dimpling along, the breezy ruffled lake, The forest darkening round, the glittering spire Th' ethereal mountain, and the distant main. But why fo far excursive? when at hand. Along these blushing borders , bright with dew . And in you mingled wilderness of flowers. Fair-handed Spring unbosoms every grace; Throws out the fnow-drop, and the crocus first: The daify, primrofe, violet darkly blue, And polyanthus of unnumber'd dyes; The yellow wall-flower , flain'd with iron brown ; And lavish flock that scents the garden round: From the foft wing of vernal breezes shed, Anemonies; auriculas, enrich'd With shining meal o'er all their velvet leaves; And full ranunculas, of glowing red. Then comes the tulip-race, where Beauty plays Her idle freaks; from family diffus'd To family, as flies the father-duft, The varied colours run; and, while they break,

On the charm'd eye, th' exulting florist marks, With secret pride, the wonders of his hand. No gradual bloom is wanting; from the bud, First-born of Spring, to Summer's musky tribes: Nor hyacinths, of purest virgin white, Low-bent, and blushing inward; nor jonquils, Of potent fragrance; nor Narcissus fair, As o'er the sabled fountain hanging still; Nor broad carnations, nor gay-spotted pinks; Nor, shower'd from every bush, the damask-rose, Infinite numbers, delicacies, smells, With hues on hues expression cannot paint, The breath of Nature, and her endless bloom.

HAIL . SOURCE OF BEING! UNIVERSAL SOUL Of Heaven and earth! ESSENTIAL PRESENCE, hail! To THEE I bend the knee; to THEE my thoughts, Continual, climb; who, with a mafter-hand, Haft the great whole into perfection touch'd, By THEE the various vegetative tribes, Wrapt in a filmy net, and clad with leaves. Draw the live ether, and imbibe the dew: By THEE dispos'd into congenial foils, Stands each attractive plant, and fucks, and fwells The juicy tide; a twining mass of tubes. At THY command the vernal fun awakes The torpid fap, detruded to the root By wintry winds; that now in fluent dance, And lively fermentation, mounting, fpreads All this innumerous-coloured fcene of things,

As rising from the vegetable world

My theme ascends, with equal wing ascend,

My panting Muse; and hark, how loud the woods

Invite you forth in all your gayest trim.

Lend me your song, ye nightingales! oh pour

The mazy-running soul of melody

Into my varied verse! white I deduce,

From the first note the hollow cuckoo sings,

The symphony of Spring, and touch a theme

Unknown to same, the Passion of the groves,

When first the soul of love is sent abroad, Warm thro' the vital air, and on the heart Harmonious feizes, the gay troops begin, In gallant thought, to plume the painted wing; And try again the long-forgotten ftrain, At first faint-warbled. But no foonner grows The foft infusion prevalent, and wide, Than, all alive, at once their joy o'erflows In music unconfin'd. Up-springs the lark, Shrill-voic'd, and loud, the meffenger of morn: Ere yet the shadows fly, he mounted fings Amid the dawning clouds, and from their haunts Calls up the tuneful nations. Every copfe Deep-tangled, tree irregular, and bush Bending with dewy moisture, o'er the heads Of the coy quirifters that lodge within, Are prodigal of harmony. The thrush go And wood-lark, o'er the kind-contending throng Superior heard, run thro' the sweetest length

To let them joy, and purposes, in thought
Elate, to make her night excel their day.
The black-bird whistles from the thorny brake;
The mellow bullfinch answers from the grove:
Nor are the linnets, o'er the flowering surze
Pour'd out profusely, silent. Join'd to these Innumerous songsters, in the freshening shade
Of new-sprung leaves, their modulations mix
Mellishuous. The jay, the rook, the daw,
And each harsh pipe, discordant heard alone,
Aid the sull concert: while the stock-dove breather
A melancholy murmur thro' the whole.

'Tis love creates their melody, and all This waste of music is the voice of love : That even to birds, and beafts, the tender are Of pleafing teaches. By the great FATHER OF THE SPRING inspir'd, Gives instant courage to the fearful race, And to the simple art. With stealthy wing, Should some rude foot their woody haunts molest, Amid a neighbouring bush they silent drop, And whirring thence, as if alarm'd, deceive Th'unfeeling school-boy. Hence, around the head Of wandering swain, the white-wing'd ployer

Be not the Muse asham'd, here to be moan
Her brothers of the grove, by tyrant Man
Inhuman caught, and in the narrow cage
From liberty confin'd, and boundless air.
Dull are the pretty flaves, their plumage dull,
Ragged, and all its brightening lustre lost;
Nor is that sprightly wildness in their notes,
Which, clear and vigorous, warbles from the beech.

O then ye friends of love and love-taught fong, Spare the fost tribes, this barbarous art forbear; If on your bosom innocence can win, Music engage, or piety persuade.

Her ruin'd care, too delicately fram'd
To brook the harsh confinement of the cage.
Oft when, returning with her loaded bill,
Th' aftonish'd mother finds a vacant neft,
By the hard hand of unrelenting clowns
Robb'd, to the ground the vain provision falls;
Her pinions ruffle, and low-drooping scarce
Can bear the mourner to the poplar shade;
Where, all abandon'd to despair, she fings
Her forrows thro' the night; and, on the bough,
Sole-fitting, still at every dying fall
Takes up again her lamentable strain
Of winding woe; till, wide around, the voods
Sigh to her song, and with her wail resound.

But now the feather'dyouth their former bounds, Ardent, difdain; and, weighing oft their wings, Demand the free possession of the sky:

This one glad office more, and then dissolves Parental love at once, now needless grown.

Unlavish Wisdom never works in vain.

'Tis on some evening, sunny, grateful, mild, When nought but balm is breathing thro' the woods, With yellow lustre bright, that the new tribes Visit the spacious heavens, and look abroad On Nature's common, far as they can see, Or wing, their range and pasture. O'er the boughs Dancing about, still at the giddy verge Their resolution sails; their pinions still, In loose libration stretch'd, to trust the void

Trembling refuse: till down before them fly
The parent-guides, and chide, exhort, commands
Or push them off. The furging air receives
Its plumy burden; and their felf-taught wings
Winnow the waving element. On ground
Alighted, bolder up again they lead,
Farther and farther on, the lengthening flight;
Till vanish'd every fear, and every power
Rouz'd into life and action, light in air
Th'acquitted parents fee their foaring race,
And once rejoicing never know them more.

High from the fummit of a craggy cliff,
Hung o'er the deep, fuch as amazing frowns
On utmost (*) Kilda's shore, whose lonely race
Resign the setting fun to Indian worlds,
The royal eagle draws his vigorous young,
Strong-pounc'd, and ardent with paternal fire.
Now set to raise a kingdom of their own,
He drives them from his fort, the towering sear,
For ages, of his empire; which, in peace,
Unstain'd he holds, while many a league to sea
He wings his course, and preys in distant isses.

Should I my steps turn to the rural seat,
Whose lofty elms, and venerable oaks,
Invite the rook, who high amid the boughs,
In early Spring, his airy city builds,
And ceaseless caws amusive; there, well-pleas'd,

I might the various polity furvey
Of the mixt houshold kind. The careful hen
Calls all her chirping family around,
Fed and defended by the fearless cock,
Whose breast with ardour slames, as on he walks,
Graceful, and crows defiance. In the pond,
The finely-checker'd duck, before her train,
Rows garrulous. The stately-sailing swan
Gives out his snowy plumage to the gale:
And arching proud his neck, with oary feet
Bears forward sierce, and guards his osier-isle,
Protective of his young. The turkey nigh,
Loud-threatening, reddens; while the peacock spreads

His every-colour'd glory to the fun, And fwims in radiant majesty along. O'er the whole homely scene, the cooing dove Flies thick in amorous chace, and wanton rolls The glancing eye, and turns the changeful neck

While thus the gentle tenants of the shade. Indulge their purer loves, the rougher world Of brutes, below, rush furious into flame, And fierce defire. Thro' all his lufty veins The bull, deep-scorch'd, the raging passion feels. Of pasture sick, and negligent of food, Scarce seen, he wades among the yellow broom, While o'er his ample sides the rambling sprays Luxuriant shoot; or thro' the mazy wood Dejected wanders, nor th' inticing bud Crops, tho' it presses on his careless sense. And oft, in jealous madning fancy wrapt, He feeks the fight; and, idly-butting, feigns His rival gor'd in every knotty trunk. Him should he meet, the bellowing war begins : Their eyes flash fury; to the hollow'd earth, Whence the fand flies, they mutter bloody deeds, And groaning deep, th' impetuous battle mix: While the fair heifer, balmy-breathing, near, Stands kindling up their rage. The trembling freed, With this hot impulse seiz'd in every nerve, Nor hears the rein, nor heeds the founding thong; Blows are not felt; but toffing high his head, And by the well-known joy to distant plains Attracted firong, all wild he burfts away; O'er rocks, and woods, and craggy mountains And, neighing, on the aërial fummit takes (flies: Th'exciting gale; then, fleep-descending, cleaves The headlong torrents foaming down the hills, Even where the madness of the straiten'd stream Turns in black eddies round: fuch is the force With which his frantic heart and finews fwell.

Nor undelighted by the boundless Spring
Are the broad monsters of the soaming deep:
From the deep ooze and gelid cavern rous'd;
They flounce and tumble in unwieldy joy.
Dire were the strain, and dissonant, to sing
The cruel raptures of the savage kind:
How by this stame their native wrath sublim'd,

They roam, amid the fury of their heart, The far-refounding waste in fiercer bands, And growl their horrid loves. But this, the theme I fing, enraptur'd, to the BRITISH FAIR, Forbids, and leads me to the mountain-brow, Where fits the shepherd on the graffy turf, Inhaling, healthful, the descending fun. Around him feeds his many-bleating flock, Of various cadence; and his sportive lambs, This way and that convolv'd, in friskful glee, Their frolicks play. And now the sprightly race Invites them forth; when fwift, the fignal given, They start away, and sweep the massy mound That runs around the hill; the rampart once Of iron war, in ancient barbarous times, When disunited BRITAIN ever bled, Lost in eternal broil: ere yet she grew To this deep-laid indisfoluble state, Where Wealth and Commerce lift their golden heads; And o'er our labours, Liberty, and Law, Impartial, watch; the wonder of a world! What is this mighty Breath, ye Sages, fay,

What is this mighty Breath, ye Sages, say,
That, in a powerful language, felt not heard,
Instructs the sowls of heaven; and thro' their breast
These arts of love diffuses? What, but God?
Inspiring God! who boundless Spirit all,
And unremitting Energy, pervades,
Adjusts, sustains, and agitates the whole.
He ceaseless works alone; and yet alone

Seems not to work: with fuch perfection fram'd Is this complex stupendous scheme of things. But, tho' conceal'd, to every purer eye Th' informing Author in his works appears: Chief, lovely Spring, in thee, and thy soft scenes, The SMILING GOD is seen; while water, earth, And air attest his bounty; which exalts The brute creation to this finer thought, And annual melts their undesigning hearts Profusely thus in tenderness and joy.

Still let my fong a nobler note affume, And fing th' infusive force of Spring on Man; When heaven and earth, as if contending, vye To raife his being, and ferene his foul, Can he forbear to join the general smile Of Nature? Can fierce passions vex his breaft. While every gale is peace, and every grove Is melody? Hence! from the bounteous walks Of flowing Spring, ye fordid fons of earth, Hard, and unfeeling of another's woe; Or only lavish to yourselves; away! (thought, But come, ye generous minds, in whose wide Of all his works, CREATIVE BOUNTY burns With warmest beam; and on your open front And liberal eye, fits, from his dark retreat Inviting modest Want. Nor, till invok'd Can reftless goodness wait; your active fearch Leaves no cold wintry corner unexplor'd; Like filent-working HEAVEN, furprizing oft

The lonely heart with unexpected good. For you the roving spirit of the wind Blows Spring abroad; for you the teeming clouds Descend in gladsome plenty o'er the world; And the fun sheds his kindest rays for you, Ye flower of human race! In these green days, Reviving Sickness lifts her languid head; Life flows afresh; and young-ey'd Health exalts The whole creation round. Contentment walks The funny glade, and feels an inward blifs Spring o'er his mind, beyond the power of kings To purchase. Pure serenity apace Induces thought, and contemplation fill. By fwift degrees the love of Nature works, And warms the bosom; till at last sublim'd To rapture, and enthufiastic heat, We feel the present DEITY, and taste The joy of GoD to fee a happy world!

Thy heart inform'd by reason's purer ray,
O LYTTELTON, the friend! thy passions thus
And meditations vary, as at large,
Courting the Muse, thro' Hagley Park thou strayes;

Of folemn oaks, that tuft the swelling mounts Thrown graceful round by Nature's careless hand, And pensive listen to the various voice Of rural peace: the herds, the flocks, the birds, The hollow-whifpering breeze, the plaint of rills, That, purling down amid the twifted roots Which creep around, their dewy murmurs shake On the footh'd ear. From these abstracted ofe, You wander thro' the philosophic world; Where in bright train continual wonders rife, Or to the curious or the pious eye. And oft, conducted by historic truth, You tread the long extent of backward time: Planning, with warm benevolence of mind, And honest zeal unwarp'd by party-rage, BRITANNIA's weal; how from the venal gulph To raise her virtue, and her arts revive. Or, turning thence thy view, these graver thoughts The Muses charm: while, with sure taste refin'd, You draw th' inspiring breath of ancient fong; Till nobly rifes, emulous, thy own. Perhaps thy lov'd LUCINDA shares thy Walk, With foul to thine attun'd. Then Nature all Wears to the lover's eye a look of love; And all the tumult of a guilty world, Toft by ungenerous paffions, finks away. In brighter flow; her wishing bosom heaves,
With palpitations wild; kind tumults seize
Her veins, and all her yielding soul is love.
From the keen gaze her lover turns away,

Be greatly cautious of your sliding hearts:
Dare not th' infectious figh, the pleading look,
Down-cast, and low, in meek submission drest,
But full of guile. Let not the servent tongue,
Prompt to deceive, with adulation smooth,

Where woodbinds flaunt, and roses shed a couch,
While Evening draws her crimson curtains round,
Trust your soft minutes with betraying Man.

And let th' aspiring youth beware of love,
Of the smooth glance beware; for 'tis too late,
When on his heart the torrent-softness pours.
Then wisdom prostrate lies, and fading same
Dissolves in air away; while the fond soul,
Wrapt in gay visions of unreal bliss,
Still paints th' illusive form; the kindling grace;
Th' inticing smile; the modest-seeming eye,
Beneath whose beauteous beams, belying heaven,
Lurk searchless cunning, cruelty, and death:
And still salse-warbling in his cheated ear,
Her syren voice, enchanting, draws him on
To guileful shores, and meads of fatal joy.

But absent, what fantastic woes, arrous'd, Rage in each thought, by reftless musing fed, Chill the warm cheek, and blaft the bloom of life? Neglected fortune flies; and fliding fwift, Prone into ruin, fall his scorn'd affairs. 'Tis nought but gloom around: The darkened fun Lofes his light. The rofy-bosom'd Spring To weeping Fancy pines; and yon bright arch, Contracted, bends into a dusky vault. All Nature fades extinct; and she alone Heard, felt, and feen, possesses every thought, Fills every fense, and pants in every vein. Books are but formal dulnefs, tedious friends; And fad amid the focial band he fits, Lonely, and unartentive. From his tongue Th' unfinish'd period falls: while, borne away On swelling thought, his wafted spirit flies To the vain bosom of his distant fair : And leaves the femblance of a lover, fix'd In melancholy fite, with head declin'd, And love-dejected eyes. Sudden he starts, Shook from his tender trance, and reffless runs To glimmering shades, and fympathetic glooms; Where the dun umbrage o'er the falling stream, Romantic, hangs; there thro' the penfive dusk Strays, in heart thrilling meditation loft, Indulging all to love : or on the bank

Thrown, amid drooping lilies, swells the breeze With fighs unceafing, and the brook with tears, Thus in foft anguish he confumes the day, Nor guits his deep retirement, till the Moon Peeps thro' the chambers of the fieecy east, Enlightened by degrees, and in her train Leads on the gentle hours; then forth he walks, Beneath the trembling languish of her beam, With fostened soul, and wooes the bird of eve To mingle woes with his : or, while the world And all the fons of Care lie hush'd in fleep, Affociates with the midnight shadows drear; And, fighing to the lonely taper, pours His idly-tortur'd heart into the page, Meant for the moving messenger of love; Where rapture burns on rapture, every line With rifing frenzy fir'd. But if on bed Delirious flung, fleep from his pillow flies. All night he toffes, nor the balmy power In any posture finds; till the grey morn Lifts her pale luftre on the paler wretch, Exanimate by love: and then perhaps Exhausted Nature finks a while to rest, Still interrupted by diffracted dreams, That o'er the fick imagination rife, And in black colours paint the mimic fcene. Oft with th' enchantress of his foul he talks; Sometimes in crouds diffress'd; or if retir'd To fecret winding flower-enwoven bowers,

Far from the dull impertinence of Man;
Just as he, credulous, his endless cares
Begins to lose in blind oblivious love, (how,
Snatch'd from her yielded hand, he knows not
Thro' forests huge, and long untravel'd heaths
With desolation brown, he wanders waste,
In night and tempest wrapt; or shrinks aghast,
Back, from the bending precipice; or wades
The turbid stream below, and strives to reach
The farther shore; where succourses, and sad,
She with extended arms his aid implores;
But strives in vain: borne by th' outrageous shood
To distance down, he rides the ridgy wave,
Or whelm'd beneath the boiling eddy sinks.

These are the charming agonies of love,
Whose misery delights. But thro' the heart
Should jealousy its venom once diffuse,
Tis then delightful misery no more,
But agony unmix'd, incessant gall,
Corroding every thought, and blassing all
Love's paradise. Ye fairy prospects, then,
Ye beds of roses, and ye bowers of joy,
Farewel! Ye gleamings of departed peace,
Shine out your last! the yellow-tinging plague
Internal vision taints, and in a night
Of livid gloom imagination wraps,
Ah then! instead of love-enlivened cheeks,
Of sunny features, and of ardent eyes
With flowing rapture bright, dark looks succeed,

Suffus'd and glaring with untender fire; A clouded aspect, and a burning cheek, Where the whole poison'd foul, malignant, fits, And frightens love away. Ten thousand fears Invented wild, ten thousand frantic views Of horrid rivals, hanging on the charms For which he melts in fondness, eat him up With fervent anguish, and confuming rage. In vain reproaches lend their idle aid, Deceitful pride, and refolution frail, Giving false peace a moment. Fancy pours, Afresh, her beauties on his bufy thought, Her first endearments twining round the foul . With all the witchcraft of enfnaring love. Straight the fierce from involves his mind anew Flames thro' the nerves, and boils along the veins; While anxious doubt diffracts the tortur'd heart: For even the fad affurance of his fears Were ease to what he feels. Thus the warm youth, Whom love deludes into his thorny wilds, Thro' flowery-tempting paths, or leads a life Of fevered rapture, or of cruel care; His brightest flames extinguish'd all, and all His brightest moments running down to waste. But happy they! the happiest of their kind! Whom gentler stars unite, and in one fate Their hearts, their fortunes, and their beings blend. Tis not the coarfer tie of human laws,

Unnatural oft, and foreign to the mind, That binds their peace, but harmony itself, Attuning all their passions into love; Where friendship full-exerts her foftest power, Perfect esteem enlivened by defire Ineffable, and fympathy of foul; Thought meeting thought, and will preventing will. With boundless confidence: for nought but love Can answer love, and render bliss secure. Let him, ungenerous, who, alone intent To bless himself, from fordid parents buys The loathing virgin, in eternal care, Well-merited, confume his nights and days: Let barbarous nations, whose inhuman love Is wild defire, fierce as the funs they feel; Let eastern tyrants, from the light of Heaven Seclude their bosom-slaves, meanly posses'd Of a meer, lifeless, violated form: While those whom love cements in holy faith, And equal transport, free as Nature live, Disdaining fear. What is the world to them, Its pomp, its pleasure, and its nonsense all! Who in each other clasp whatever fair High fancy forms, and lavish hearts can wish; Something than beauty dearer, should they look Or on the mind, or mind-illumin'd face; Truth, goodness, honour, harmony, and love, The richest bounty of indulgent HEAVEN.

Meantime a fmiling offspring rifes round, And mingles both their graces. By degrees. The human bloffom blows; and every day, Soft as it rolls along, shews fome new charm ... The father's luftre, and the mother's bloom. Then infant reason grows apace, and calls For the kind hand of an affiduous care. Delightful task! to rear the tender thought, To teach the young idea how to shoot, To pour the fresh instruction o'er the mind, To breathe th' enlivening spirit, and to fix The generous purpose in the glowing breaft, Oh speak the joy! ye, whom the sudden tear Surprizes often, while you look around, And nothing strikes your eye but fights of blifs, All various Nature pressing on the heart, An elegant sufficiency, content, Retirement, rural quiet, friendship, books. Ease and alternate labour, useful life, Progressive virtue, and approving HEAVEN. These are the matchless joys of virtuous love; And thus their moments fly. The Seafons thus, As ceaseless round a jarring world they roll, Still find them happy; and confenting SPRING Sheds her own rofy garland on their heads: Till evening comes at last, serene and mild; When after the long vernal day of life, Enamour'd more, as more remembrance swells

The ARGUMENT.

The subject proposed. Invocation. Address to Mr. DODINGTON. An introductory reflection on the motion of the heavenly bodies; whence the succession of the seasons. As the face of Nature in this season is almost uniform, the progress of the poem is a description of a summer's day. The dawn, Sunrifing. Hymn to the fun. Forenoon, Summer infeds described. Hay-making. Sheep-shearing. Noon-day. A wood'and retreat. Groupe of herds and flocks, A folemn grove: how it affects a contemplative mind, A cataract, and rude scene. View of Summer in the corrid zone, Storm of thunder and lightning. A tale, The storm over, a serene afternoon. Bathing. Hour of walking. Transition to the prospect of a rich well-cultivated country; which introduces a panegyric on GREAT BRITAIN. Sun-fet. Evening. Night. Summer meteors. A comet. The whole concluding with the praise of philosophy.

From brightening fields of ether fair disclos'd, Child of the Sun, refulgent Summer comes, In pride of youth, and felt thro' Nature's depth: He comes attended by the fultry hours, And ever fanning breezes, on his way; While, from his ardent look, the turning Spring Averts her blushful face; and earth, and skies, All-smiling, to his hot dominion leaves.

Hence, let me haste into the mid-wood shade, Where scarce a sun-beam wanders thro'the gloom; And on the dark-green grass, beside the brink of haunted stream, that by the roots of oak Rolls o'er the rocky channel, lie at large, And sing the glories of the circling year.

Come, Inspiration! from thy hermit-seat,
By mortal seldom found: may Fancy dare,
From thy fix'd serious eye, and raptur'd glance
Shot on surrounding Heaven, to steal one look
Creative of the Poet, every power
Exalting to an ecstafy of soul.

And thou, my youthful Muse's early friend, In whom the human graces all unite: Pure light of mind, and tenderness of heart; Genius, and wisdom; the gay social sense, By decency chastis'd; goodness and wit, In feldom-meeting harmony combin'd;
Unblemish'd honour, and an active zeal
For BRITAIN'S glory, Liberty, and Man:
O DODINGTON! attend my rural fong,
Stoop to my theme, inspirit every line,
And teach me to deserve thy just applause.

With what an awful world-revolving power
Were first the unwieldy planets launch'd along
Th'illimitable void! Thus to remain,
Amid the flux of many thousand years,
That oft has swept the toiling race of Men,
And all their labour'd monuments away,
Firm, unremitting, matchless, in their course;
To the kind-temper'd change of night and day,
And of the seasons ever sealing round,
Minutely faithful: Such Th' ALL-PERFECT HAND!
That pois'd, impels, and rules the seady whose.

When now no more th' alternate Twins are fir'd,
And Cancer reddens with the folar blaze,
Short is the doubtful empire of the night;
And foon, observant of approaching day,
The meek-ey'd Morn appears, mother of dews,
At first faint-gleaming in the dappled east:
Till far o'er ether spreads the widening glow;
And, from before the lustre of her face, (step,
White break the clouds away. With quickened
Brown Night retires: Young Day pours in apace,
And opens all the lawny prospect wide.
The dripping rock, the mountain's misty top

Swell on the fight, and brighten with the dawn.

Blue, thro' the dusk, the smoaking currents shine;

And from the bladed field the fearful hare

Limps, aukward: while along the forest-glade

The wild deer trip, and often turning gaze

At early passenger. Music awakes

The native voice of undissembled joy;

And thick around the woodland hymns arise.

Rous'd by the cock, the soon-clad shepherd leaves

His mosty cottage, where with Peace he dwells;

And from the crouded fold, in order, drives

His flock, to taste the verdure of the morn.

Falfely luxurious, will not Man awake;
And, springing from the bed of sloth, enjoy
The cool, the fragrant, and the silent hour.
To meditation due and sacred song?
For is there aught in sleep can charm the wise?
To lie in dead oblivion, losing half
The sleeting moments of too short a life;
Total extinction of th' enlightened soul!
Or else to severish vanity alive,
Wildered, and tossing thro' distemper'd dreams?
Who would in such a gloomy state remain
Longer than Nature craves; when every Muse
And every blooming pleasure wait vithout,
To bless the wildly-devious morning-walk?

But yonder comes the powerful King of Day,
Rejoicing in the east. The lessening cloud,
The kindling azure, and the mountain's brow

Illum'd with fluid gold, his near approach
Betoken glad. Lo; now, apparent all,
Aflant the dew-bright earth, and coloured air,
He looks in boundless majesty abroad;
And sheds the shining day, that burnish'd plays
On rocks, and hills, and towers, and wandering streams.

High-gleaming from afar. Prime chearer Light!
Of all material beings first, and best!
Essua divine! Nature's resplendent robe!
Without whose vesting beauty all were wrapt
In unessential gloom; and thou, O Sun!
Soul of surrounding worlds! in whom best seen
Shines out thy Maker! may I sing of thee?

'Tis by thy fecret, firong, attractive force, As with a chain indiffoluble bound,

Thy System rolls entire; from the far bourne
Of utmost Saturn, wheeling wide his round
Of thirty years; to Mercury, whose disk
Can scarce be caught by philosophic eye,
Lost in the near effulgence of thy blaze.

Informer of the planetary train! (orbs
Without whose quickening glance their cumbrous
Were brute unlovely mass, inert and dead;
And not, as now, the green abodes of life!
How many forms of being wait on thee!
Inhaling spirit; from th' unsertered mind,
By thee sublim'd, down to the daily race,
The mixing myriads of thy setting beam.

The vegetable world is also thine, Parent of Seafons! who the pomp precede That waits thy throne, as thro' thy vast domain. Annual, along the bright ecliptic road, In world-rejoicing flate, it moves fublime. Mean-time, th' expecting nations, circled gay With all the various tribes of foodful earth, Implore thy bounty, or fend grateful up A common hymn: while, round thy beaming car. High-feen, the Seafons lead, in sprightly dance Harmonious knit, the rofy-finger'd Hours, The Zephyrs floating loose, the timely Rains, Of bloom ethereal the light-footed Dews, And foftened into joy the furly Storms. These, in successive turn, with lavish hand, Shower every beauty, every fragrance shower. Herbs, flowers, and fruits; till, kindling at thy touch. From land to land is flush'd the vernal year.

Nor to the furface of enlivened earth,
Graceful with hills and dales, and leafy woods,
Her liberal treffes, is thy force confin'd:
But, to the bowel'd cavern darting deep,
The mineral kinds confess thy mighty power.
Effulgent, hence the veiny marble shines;
Hence Labour draws his tools; hence burnish'd War
Gleams on the day; the nobler works of Peace
Hence bless mankind, and generous Commerce binds
The round of nations in a golden chain.

In dark retirement forms the lucid stone. The lively Diamond drinks thy pureft rays, Collected light , compact ; that , polish'd bright, And all its native luftre let abroad . Dares, as it sparkles on the fair one's breaft. With vain ambition emulate her eyes. At thee the Ruby lights its deepening glow, And with a waving radiance inward flames. From thee the Sapphire, folid ether, takes Its hue cerulean; and, of evening tinct, The purple-ftreaming Amethyst is thine. With thy own fmile the yellow Topaz burns, Nor deeper verdure dyes the robe of Spring, When first she gives it to the southern gale, Than the green Emerald shows. But, all combin'd Thick thro' the whitening Opal play thy beams; Or, flying feveral from its furface, form A trembling variance of revolving hues, As the fite varies in the gazer's hand,

The very dead creation, from thy touch,
Affumes a mimic life. By thee refin'd,
In brighter mazes the relucent stream
Plays o'er the mead. The precipice abrupt,
Projecting horror on the blackened flood,
Softens at thy return. The desart joys
Wildly, thro' all his melancholy bounds.
Rude ruins glitter; and the briny deep,
Seen from some pointed promontory's top,
Far to the blue horizon's utmost verge, bout

Reftless, reflects a floating gleam. But this, And all the much-transported Muse can fing, Are to thy beauty, dignity, and use, Unequal far; great delegated source Of light, and life, and grace, and joy below!

How shall I then attempt to fing of Him!
Who, LIGHT HIMSELF, in uncreated light
Invested deep, dwells awfully retir'd
From mortal eye, or angel's purer ken;
Whose single smile has, from the first of time,
Fill'd, overslowing, all those lamps of Heaven,
That beam for ever thro' the boundless sky:
But, should he hide his face, th' astonish'd sun,
And all th' extinguish'd stars, would loosening reel
Wide from their spheres, and Chaos come again.

And yet was every faultering tongue of Man,
ALMIGHTY FATHER! filent in thy praise?
Thy Works themselves would raise a general voice,
Even in the depth of solitary woods
By human foot untrod; proclaim thy power,
And to the quire celestial Thee resound,
Th' eternal cause, support, and end of all!

To me be Nature's volume broad-display'd;
And to peruse its all-instructing page,
Or, haply catching inspiration thence,
Some easy passage, raptur'd, to translate,
My sole delight; as thro' the falling glooms
Pensive I stray, or with the rising dawn
On Fancy's eagle-wing excursive soar.

Now, flaming up the heavens, the potent fun Melts into limpid air the high-rais'd clouds, And morning fogs, that hovered round the hills In party-colour'd bands; till wide unveil'd The face of Nature shines, from where earth feems, Far-stretch'd around, to meet the bending sphere,

Half in a blush of clustering roses lost,

Dew-dropping Coolness to the shade retires;

There, on the verdant turf, or flowery bed,

By gelid founts and careless rills to muse;

While tyrant Heat, dispreading thro' the sky,

With rapid sway, his burning influence darts

On Man, and beast, and herb, and tepid stream.

Who can unpitying fee the flowery race,
Shed by the morn, their new-flush'd bloom refign,
Before the parching beam? So fade the fair,
When fevers revel thro' their azure veins.
But one, the lofty follower of the fun,
Sad when he fets, shuts up her yellow leaves,
Drooping all night; and, when he warm returns,
Points her enamour'd bosom to his ray.

Home, from his morning task, the fwain retreats;
His flock before him stepping to the fold:
While the full-udder'd mother lows around
The chearful cottage, then expecting food,
The food of innocence, and health! The daw,
The rook and magpie, to the grey-grown oaks
That the calm village in their verdant arms,
Sheltering, embrace, direct their lazy flight;

Where on the mingling boughs they fit embower'd,
All the hot noon, till cooler hours arife.

Faint, underneath, the houshold fowls convene;
And, in a corner of the buzzing shade,
The house-dog, with the vacant greyhound, lies,
Out-firetch'd, and sleepy. In his slumbers one
Attacks the nightly thief, and one exults
O'er hill and dale; till, wakened by the wasp,
They starting snap. Nor shall the Muse disdain
To let the little noisy summer-race
Live in her lay, and flutter thro' her song:
Not mean tho' simple; to the sun ally'd,
From him they draw their animating fire.

WAR'D by his warmer ray, the reptile young Come wing'd abroad; by the light air upborn, Lighter, and full of foul. From every chink, And fecret corner, where they flept away The wintry florms; or rifing from their tombs, To higher life; by myriads, forth at once, Swarming they pour; of all the vary'd hues Their beauty-beaming parent can disclose. Ten thousand forms! ren thousand different tribes! People the blaze. To funny waters fome By fatal inflinct fly; where on the pool They, sportive, wheel; or, failing down the ftream, Are fnatch'd immediate by the quick-ey'd trout, Or darting falmon. Thro' the green-wood glade Some love to ftray; there lodg'd, amus'd and fed, In the fresh leaf, Luxurious, others make

The meads their choice, and visit every flower, And every latent herb: for the sweet task, To propagate their kinds, and where to wrap, In what soft beds, their young yet undisclos'd, Employs their tender care. Some to the house, The fold, and dairy, hungry, bend their flight; Sip round the pail, or taste the curdling cheese: Oft, inadvertent, from the milky stream They meet their sate; or, weltering in the bowl, With powerless wings around them wrapt, expire,

But chief to heedless flies the window proves
A constant death; where, gloomily retir'd,
The villain spider lives, cunning, and fierce,
Mixture abhor'd! Amid a mangled heap
Of carcasses, in eager watch he fits,
O'erlooking all his waving snares around.
Near the dire cell the dreadless wanderer oft
Passes, as oft the russian shows his front;
The prey at last ensnar'd, he dreadful darts,
With rapid glide, along the leaning line;
And, fixing in the wretch his cruel fangs,
Strikes backward grimly pleas'd: the fluttering Andshriller found declare extreme distress, (wing,
And ask the helping hospitable hand.

Resounds the living surface of the ground:
Nor undelightful is the ceaseless hum,
To him who muses thro' the woods at noon;
Or drowsy shepherd, as he lies reclin'd,
With half-shut eyes, beneath the floating shade

Of willows grey, close-crouding o'er the brook, Gradual, from these what numerous kinds descend, Evading even the microscopic eve! Full Nature fwarms with life; one wondrous mass Of animals, or atoms organiz'd, Waiting the vital Breath, when PARENT-HEAVEN Shall bid his spirit blow. The hoary fen, In putrid fleams, emits the living cloud Of pestilence. Thro' subterranean cells, Where fearthing fun-beams fearce can find a way, Earth animated heaves. The flowery leaf Wants not its foft inhabitants. Secure, Within its winding citadel, the stone Holds multitudes. But chief the forest-boughs That dance unnumber'd to the playful breeze, The downy orchard, and the melting pulp Of mellow fruit, the nameless nations feed Of evanescent insects. Where the pool Stands mantled o'er with green, invisible, Amid the floating verdure millions stray. Each liquid too, whether it pierces, fooths, Inflames, refreshes, or exalts the taile, With various forms abounds. Nor is the stream Of purest crystal, nor the lucid air, Tho' one transparent vacancy it seems, Void of their unseen people. These, conceal'd By the kind art of forming HEAVEN, escape The groffer eye of Man: for, if the worlds In worlds inclos'd should on his fenses burst,

From cates ambrofial, and the nectar'd bowl, He would abhorrent turn; and in dead night, When filence fleeps o'er all, be flunn'd with noise,

Let no prefuming impious railer tax CREATIVE WISDOM, as if anght was form'd In vain, or not for admirable ends. Shall little haughty ignorance pronounce His works unwife, of which the smallest part Exceeds the narrow vision of her mind? As if upon a full proportion'd dome, On fwelling columns heav'd, the pride of art! A critic-fly, whose feeble ray scarce spreads An inch around, with blind presumption bold, Should dare to tax the structure of the whole. And lives the Man, whose universal eve Has fwept at once th' unbounded scheme of things; Mark'd their dependance so, and firm accord, As with unfaultering accent to conclude That This availeth nought? Has any feen The mighty chain of beings, leffening down From Infinite Perfection to the brink Of dreary Nothing, defolate abyss! From which aftonish'd thought, recoiling, turns? The quivering nations sport; till, tempest-wing'd, Fierce Winter sweeps them from the face of day. Even so luxurious Men, unheeding, pass An idle summer life in fortune's shine, A season's glitter! Thus they flutter on From toy to toy, from vanity to vice; Till, blown away by death, oblivion comes Behind, and strikes them from the book of life.

Now fwarms the village o'er the jovial mead: The ruftic youth, brown with meridian toil, Healthful and ftrong; full as the fummer-rofe Blown by prevailing funs, the ruddy maid, Half naked, fwelling on the fight, and all Her kindled graces burning o'er her cheek. Even flooping age is here; and infant-hands Trail the long rake, or, with the fragrant load O'ercharg'd, amid the kind oppression roll. Wide flies the tedded grain; all in a row Advancing broad, or wheeling round the field, They fpread the breathing harvest to the fun, That throws refreshful round a rural fmell: Or, as they rake the green-appearing ground, And drive the dusky wave along the mead, The ruffet hay-cock rifes thick behind, In order gay. While heard from dale to dale, Waking the breeze, refounds the blended voice Of happy labour, love, and focial glee.

Or rushing thence, in one diffusive band,
They drive the troubled flocks, by many a dog

Compell'd, to where the mazy-running brook Forms a deep pool; this bank abrupt and high, And that fair spreading in a pebbled shore. Urg'd to the giddy brink, much is the toil, The clamour much, of men, and boys, and dogs, Ere the foft fearful people to the flood Commit their woolly fides. And oft the fwain. On some impatient seizing, hurls them in: Embolden'd then, nor hefitating more,. Fast, fast, they plunge amid the flashing wave, And panting labour to the farthest shore. Repeated this, till deep the well-wash'd fleece Has drunk the flood, and from his lively haunt The trout is banish'd by the fordid ftream; Heavy, and dripping, to the breezy brow Slow move the harmless race; where, as they Their fwelling treasures to the funny ray, (spread Inly diffurb'd, and wondering what this wild Outrageous tumult means, their loud complaints The country fill; and, toss'd from rock to rock, Incessant bleatings run around the hills. At last, of snowy white, the gathered flocks Are in the wattled pen innumerous press'd, Head above head: and, rang'd in lufty rows The shepherds fit, and whet the founding shears, The housewife waits to roll her fleecy stores, With all her gay-dreft maids attending round, One, chief, in gracious dignity enthron'd, Shines o'er the rest, the pastoral queen, and rays

Her fmiles, fweet-beaming, on her shepherd-king; While the glad circle round them yield their fouls To festive mirth, and wit that knows no gall, Meantime, their joyous task goes on apace: Some mingling ftir the melted tar, and fome, Deep on the new-shorn vagrant's heaving fide, To flamp his mafter's cypher ready fland; Others the unwilling wether drag along; And, glorying in his might, the flurdy boy Holds by the twifted horns th' indignant ram. Behold where bound, and of its robe bereft, By needy Man, that all-depending lord, How meek, how patient, the mild creature lies! What foftness in its melancholy face, What dumb complaining innocence appears! Fear not, ye gentle tribes, 'tis not the knife Of horrid flaughter that is o'er you wav'd; No, 'tis the tender fwain's well-guided shears, Who having now, to pay his annual care, Borrowed your fleece, to you a cumbrous load, Will fend you bounding to your hills again.

A simple scene! yet hence BRITANNIA sees.
Her solid grandeur rise: hence she commands.
Th'exalted stores of every brighter clime?
The treasures of the sun without his rage:
Hence, servent all, with culture, toil, and arts,
Wide glows her land: her dreadful thunder hence.
Rides o'er the waves sublime, and now, even now,
Impending hangs o'er Gallia's humbled coast;

Hence rules the circling deep, and awes the world. 'Tis raging Noon; and, vertical, the fun Darts on the head direct his forceful rays. O'er heaven and earth, far as the ranging eye Can fweep, a dazling deluge reigns; and all From pole to pole is undiffinguish'd blaze. In vain the fight, dejected to the ground, Stoops for relief; thence hot-ascending steams And keen reflection pain. Deep to the root Of vegetation parch'd, the cleaving fields And flippery lawn an arid hue disclose, Blaft Fancy's bloom, and wither even the Soul, Echo no more returns the chearful found Of sharpening fcythe: the mower finking heaps O'er him the humid hay, with flowers perfum'd; And scarce a chirping grass-hopper is heard Thro' the dumb mead. Distressful Nature pants. The very streams look languid from afar; Or, thro' th' unshelter'd glade, impatient, feem To hurl into the covert of the grove.

All-conquering Heat, oh intermit thy wrath!
And on my throbbing temples potent thus
Beam not so fierce! Incessant still you flow,
And still another fervent flood succeeds,
Pour'd on the head profuse. In vain I sigh,
And restless turn, and look around for Night;
Night is far off; and hotter hours approach.

That, forming high in air a woodland quire, Nods o'er the mount beneath. At every step, Solemn, and slow, the shadows blacker fall, And all is awful listening gloom around,

These are the haunts of Meditation, these The scenes where ancient bards th'inspiring breath Extatic, felt; and, from this world retir'd, Convers'd with angels, and immortal forms. On gracious errands bent : to fave the fall Of virtue struggling on the brink of vice; In waking whispers, and repeated dreams, To hint pure thought, and warn the favour'd foul For future trials fated to prepare; To prompt the poet, who devoted gives His muse to better themes; to soothe the pangs Of dying worth, and from the patriot's breaft (Backward to mingle in detefted war, But foremost when engag'd) to turn the death; And numberless such offices of love. Daily and nightly, zealous to perform.

Shook sudden from the bosom of the sky,
A thousand shapes or glide athwart the dusk,
Or stalk majestic on. Deep-rous'd, I feel
A sacred terror, a severe delight,
Creep thro' my mortal frame; and thus, methinks,
A voice, than human more, th'abstracted ear
Of sancy strikes. "Be not of us asraid,
"Poor kindred Man! thy-fellow-creatures, we
"From the same PARENT-Power our beings drew,

» The same our Lord, and laws, and great pursuit,

"Once fome of us, like thee, thro' flormy life,

» Toil'd, tempest-beaten, ere we could attain

» This holy calm, this harmony of mind,

» Where purity and peace immingle charms.

"Then fear not us; but with responsive song,

» Amid these dim recesses, undisturb'd

" By noify folly and discordant vice,

» Of Nature fing with us , and Nature's God.

» Here frequent, at the visionary hour,

» When musing midnight reigns or filent noon,

"Angelic harps are in full concert heard, (hill,

» And voices chaunting from the wood-crown'd

" The deepening dale, or inmost sylvan glade;

" A privilege beflow'd by us, alone,

On Contemplation, or the hallow'd ear

" Of Poet, swelling to seraphic strain ".

And art thou, * STANLEY, of that facred band?
Alas, for us too foon! Tho' rais'd above
The reach of human pain, above the flight
Of human joy; yet, with a mingled ray
Of fadly pleas'd remembrance, must thou feel
A mother's love, a mother's tender woe:
Who feeks thee still, in many a former scene;
Seeks thy fair form, thy lovely-beaming eyes,
Thy pleasing converse, by gay lively sense
Inspir'd: where moral wisdom mildly shone,
Without the toil of art; and virtue glow'd

In all her smiles, without forbidding pride.
But, O thou best of parents! wipe thy tears;
Or rather to PARENTAL NATURE pay
The tears of grateful joy, who for a while
Lent thee this younger self, this opening bloom
Of thy enlightened mind and gentle worth.
Believe the Muse: the wintry blast of death
Kills not the buds of virtue; no, they spread,
Beneath the heavenly beam of brighter suns
Thro' endless ages, into higher powers.

Thus up the mount, in airy vision rapt,
I stray, regardless whither; till the sound

Smooth to the shelving brink a copious flood
Rolls fair, and placid; where collected all,
In one impetuous torrent, down the fleep
It thundering shoots, and shakes the country round.
At first, an azure sheet, it rushes broad;
Then whitening by degrees, as prone it falls,
And from the loud-resounding rocks below
Dash'd in a cloud of foam, it sends aloft
A hoary mist, and forms a ceaseless shower.
Nor can the tortur'd wave here find repose:
But, raging still amid the shaggy rocks,
Now slashes o'er the scatter'd fragments, now
Assant the hollow channel rapid darts;
And falling fast from gradual slope to slope,

With wild infracted course, and lessened roar, It gains a safer bed, and steals, at last, Along the mazes of the quiet vale.

Invited from the cliff, to whose dark brow
He clings, the steep-ascending eagle soars,
With upward pinions thro' the flood of-day;
And, giving full his bosom to the blaze,
Gains on the sun; while all the tuneful race,
Smit by afflictive noon, disorder'd droop,
Deep in the thicket; or, from bower to bower
Responsive, force an interrupted strain.
The stock-dove only thro' the forest cooes,
Mournfully hoarse; oft ceasing from his plaint,
Short interval of weary woe! again
The sad idea of his murder'd mate,
Struck from his side by savage fowler's guile,
Across his sancy comes; and then resounds
A louder song of sorrow thro' the grove.

Beside the dewy border let me sit,

All in the freshness of the humid air;

There in that hollowed rock, grotesque and wild;

An ample chair moss-lin'd, and over head

By flowering umbrage shaded; where the bee

Of fragrant wood-bine loads his little thigh.

Of berries. Oft in humble station dwells
Unboastful worth, above fastidious pomp.
Witness, thou best Anana, thou the pride
Of vegetable life, beyond whate'er
The poets imag'd in the golden age:
Quick let me strip thee of thy tusty coat,
Spread thy ambrosial stores, and feast with Jore!
From these the prospect varies. Plains immense

Lie stretch'd below, interminable meads,
And vast savannahs, where the wandering eye,
Unfixt, is in a verdant ocean lost.
Another Flora there, of bolder hues,
And richer sweets, beyond our garden's pride,
Plays o'er the fields, and showers with sudden hand
Exuberant spring: for oft these valleys shift
Their green-embroider'd robe to fiery brown,
And swift to green again, as scorching suns,
Or streaming dews and torrent rains, prevail.

Along these lonely regions, where retir'd,
From little scenes of art, great Nature dwells
In awful solitude, and nought is seen
But the wild herds that own no master's stall,
Prodigious rivers roll their fatning seas:
On whose luxuriant herbage, half-conceal'd,
Like a fallen cedar, far disfus'd his train,
Cas'd in green scales, the crocodile extends.
The flood disparts: behold! in plaited mail,

Aspiring cities from their solid base,
And buries mountains in the slaming gulph.
But 'tis enough; return, my vagrant Muse:
A nearer scene of horror calls thee home.

Behold, flow-fettling o'er the lurid grove Unufual darkness broods; and growing gains The full poffession of the sky, furcharg'd With wrathful vapour, from the fecret beds, Where fleep the mineral generations, drawn. Thence Nitre, Sulphur, and the fiery spume Of fat Bitumen, fleaming on the day, With various-tinctur'd trains of latent flame, Pollute the sky, and in yon baleful cloud, A reddening gloom, a magazine of fate, Ferment; till, by the touch ethereal rous'd, The dash of clouds, or irritating war Of fighting winds, while all is calm below, They furious fpring. A boding filence reigns, Dread thro' the dun expanse; fave the dull found That from the mountain, previous to the florm, Rolls o'er the muttering earth, diffurbs the flood, And shakes the forest-leaf without a breath. Prone, to the lowest vale, the aërial tribes Descend: the tempest-loving raven scarce Dares wing the dubious dusk. In rueful gaze The cattle fland, and on the scowling heavens Cast a deploring eye; by Man forfook,

Who to the crowded cottage hies him fast, Or seeks the shelter of the downward cave.

Tis liftening fear, and dumb amazement all: When to the flartled eye the fudden glance Appears far fouth, eruptive thro' the cloud; And following flower, in explosion vaft, The Thunder raifes his tremendous voice. At first, heard folemn o'er the verge of heaven, The tempest growls; but as it nearer comes. And rolls its awful burden on the wind, The lightnings flash a larger curve, and more The noise assounds: till over head a sheet Of livid flame discloses wide; then shuts. And opens wider; shuts and opens still Expansive, wrapping ether in a blaze. Follows the loofen'd aggravated roar, Enlarging, deepening, mingling; peal on peal Crush'd horrible, convulfing heaven and earth,

Down comes a deluge of fonorous hail,
Or prone-descending rain. Wide-rent, the clouds,
Pour a whole flood; and yet, its flame unquench'd,
Th' unconquerable lightning struggles through,
Ragged and fierce, or in red whirling balls,
And fires the mountains with redoubled rage.
Black from the stroke, above, the smouldering pine
Stands a sad shatter'd trunk; and, stretch'd below,
A lifeless groupe the blasted cattle lie:
Here the soft flocks, with that same harmless look
They wore alive, and ruminating still

In fancy's eye; and there the frowning bull,
And ox half-rais'd. Struck on the castled cliss,
The venerable tower and spiry fane
Resign their aged pride. The gloomy woods
Start at the slash, and from their deep recess,
Wide-slaming out, their trembling inmates shake,
Amid Carnarvon's mountains rages loud
The repercussive roar: with mighty crush,
Into the slashing deep, from the rude rocks
Of Penmanmaur heap'd hideous to the sky,
Tumble the smitten cliss; and Snowden's peak,
Dissolving, instant yields his wintry load.
Far-seen, the heights of heathy Cheviot blaze,
And Thulè bellows thro' her utmost isses.
Guilthears appall'd with deeply troubled thoughts.

And yet not always on the guilty head
Descends the fated flash. Young CELADON
And his AMELIA were a matchless pair;
With equal virtue form'd, and equal grace,
The same, distinguish'd by their sex alone:
Hers the mild lustre of the blooming morn,
And his the radiance of the risen day.

They lov'd: but such their guileless passion was,
As in the dawn of time inform'd the heart
Of innocence, and undissembling truth.
'Twas friendship heightened by the mutual wish,
Th' enchanting hope, and sympathetic glow,
Beam'd from the mutual eye. Devoting all
To love, each was to each a dearer felf;

Supremely happy in th' awakened power Of giving joy. Alone, amid the shades, Still in harmonious intercourfe they liv'd The rural day, and talk'd the flowing heart, Or figh'd and look'd unutterable things.

So pass'd their life, a clear united stream. By care unruffled; till, in evil hour, The tempest caught them on the tender walk, Heedless how far, and where its mazes stray'd, While, with each other bleft, creative love Still bade eternal Eden fmile around. Presaging instant fate her bosom heav'd Unwonted fighs, and stealing oft a look Of the big gloom on CELADON her eye Fell tearful, wetting her difordered cheek. In vain affuring love, and confidence In HEAVEN, reprefs'd her fear; it grew, and shook Her frame near dissolution. He perceiv'd Th' unequal conflict, and as angels look On dying faints, his eyes compassion shed, With love illumin'd high. " Fear not, he faid, "Sweet innocence! thou stranger to offence. » And inward form! HE, who you skies involves

- " In frowns of darkness, ever smiles on thee
- " With kind regard. O'er thee the fecret shaft
- " That wastes at midnight, or th' undreaded hour
- " Of noon, flies harmless: and that very voice,
- » Which thunders terror thro' the guilty heart,
- " With tongues of feraphs wifpers peace to thine,

"Tis fafery to be near thee fure, and thus
"To class persection!" From his void embrace,
Mysterious Heaven! that moment, to the ground,
A blackened corse, was struck the beauteous maid,
But who can paint the lover, as he stood,
Pierc'd by severe amazement, hating life,
Speechless, and fix'd in all the death of woe!
So, faint resemblance! on the marble tomb,
The well-dissembled mourner stooping stands,
For ever silent, and for ever sad.

As from the face of heaven the shattered clouds
Tumultuous rove, th' interminable sky
Sublimer fwells, and o'er the world expands
A purer azure. Thro' the lightened air
A higher luftre and a clearer calm,
Diffusive, tremble; while, as if in fign
Of danger past, a glittering robe of joy,
Set off abundant by the yellow ray,
Invests the fields; and nature smiles reviv'd.

'Tis beauty all, and grateful fong around,
Join'd to the low of kine, and numerous bleat
Of flocks thick-nibbling thro' the clover'd vale.
And shall the hymn be marr'd by thankless Man,
Most-favour'd; who with voice articulate
Should lead the chorus of this lower world?
Shall he, so soon forgetful of the hand
That hush'd the thunder, and serenes the sky,
Extinguish'd feel that spark the tempest wak'd,
That sense of powers exceeding far his own,

Ere yet his feeble heart has loft its fears?

Chear'd by the milder beam, the sprightly youth Speeds to the well-known pool, whose crystal depth A sandy bottom shews. A while he stands Gazing th' inverted landskip, half asraid To meditate the blue prosound below; Then plunges headlong down the circling slood. His ebon tresses, and his rosy cheek Instant emerge; and thro' the obedient wave, At each short breathing by his lip repell'd, With arms and legs according well, he makes, As humour leads, an easy-winding path; While, from his polish'd sides, a dewy light Effuses on the pleas'd spectators round.

This is the purest exercise of health,
The kind refresher of the summer-heats; (flood,
Nor, when cold WINTER keens the brightening
Would I weak-shivering linger on the brink.
Thus life redoubles, and is oft preserv'd,
By the bold swimmer, in the swift illapse
Of accident disastrous. Hence the limbs
Knit into force; and the same Roman arm,
That rose victorious o'er the conquer'd earth,
First learn'd, while tender, to subdue the wave.
Even, from the body's purity, the mind
Receives a secret sympathetic aid.

Close in the covert of an hazel copse, Where winded into pleasing solitudes Runs out the rambling dale, young DAMON sat,

Penfive, and pierc'd with love's delightful pangs. There to the stream that down the distant rocks Hoarfe-murmuring fell, and plaintive breeze that Among the bending willows, falfely he (play'd Of Musipora's cruelty complain'd. She felt his flame; but deep within her breaft, In bashful coyness, or in maiden pride, The foft return conceal'd; fave when it fole In fide-long glances from her downcast eye, Or from her fwelling foul in stifled fighs. Touch'd by the scene, no stranger to his vows, He fram'd a melting lay, to try her heart; And, if an infant passion struggled there To call that passion forth. Thrice happy swain! A lucky chance, that oft decides the fate Of mighty monarchs, then decided thine. For lo! conducted by the laughing Loves, This cool retreat his MUSIDORA fought: Warm in her cheek the fultry feafon glow'd; And, rob'd in loose array, she came to bathe Her fervent limbs in the refreshing stream. What shall he do? In sweet confusion loft, And dubious flutterings, he a while remain'd: A pure ingenuous elegance of foul, A delicate refinement, known to few, Perplex'd his breaft, and urg'd him to retire: But love forbade. Ye prudes in virtue, fay, Say, ye severest, what would you have done? Meantime, this fairer nymph than ever bleft

Areadian stream, with timid eye around The banks furveying, ftripp'd her beauteous limbs. To tafte the lucid coolness of the flood, Ah then! not Paris on the piny top Of Ida panted fironger, when afide The rival-goddeffes the veil divine Cast unconfin'd, and gave him all their charms. Than, DAMON, thou; as from the fnowy leg. And flender foot, th' inverted filk she drew; As the foft touch diffolv'd the virgin zone; And, thro' the parting robe, th' alternate breaft, With youth wild-throbbing, on thy lawless gaze In full luxuriance rose. But, desperate youth, How durft thou rifque the foul-diffracting view ; As from her naked limbs, of glowing white, Harmonious swell'd by Nature's finest hand, In folds loofe-floating fell the fainter lawn; And fair-expos'd she food, shrunk from herfelf. With fancy blushing, at the doubtful breeze Alarm'd, and flarting like the fearful fawn? Then to the flood she rush'd; the parted flood Its lovely guest with closing waves receiv'd; And every beauty foftening, every grace Flushing anew, a mellow luftre shed: As shines the lily thro' the crystal mild; Or as the rose amid the morning dew, Fresh from Aurora's hand, more sweetly glows. While thus she wanton'd, now beneath the wave But ill-conceal'd; and now with streaming locks, That half-embrac'd her in a humid veil.

Rifing again, the latent DAMON drew Such madning draughts of beauty to the foul. As for a while o'erwhelm'd his raptur'd thought With luxury too-daring. Check'd, at last, By love's respectful modesty, he deem'd The theft profane, if aught profane to love Can e'er be deem'd, and, struggling from the shade. With headlong hurry fled : but first these lines, Trac'd by his ready pencil, on the bank With trembling hand he threw. " Bathe on, my " Yet unbeheld fave by the facred eye ... Of faithful love : I go to guard thy haunt, " To keep from thy recess each vagrant foot, » And each licentious eye ». With wild surprize. As if to marble ftruck, devoid of fense, A flupid moment motionless she flood: So flands the * flatue that enchants the world, So bending tries to veil the matchless boast, The mingled beauties of exulting Greece, Recovering, fwift she flew to find those robes Which blifsful Eden knew not; and, array'd In careless haste, th' alarming paper snatch'd. But, when her DAMON's well-known hand she Her terrors vanish'd, and a fofter train (faw, Of mixt emotions, hard to be describ'd, Her sudden bosom seiz'd: shame void of guilt, The charming blush of innocence, esteem, And admiration of her lover's flame, By modesty exalted: even a sense . Of self-approving beauty stole across
Her busy thought. At length, a tender calm
Hush'd by degrees the tumult of her soul;
And on the spreading beech, that o'er the stream
Incumbent hung, she with the silvan pen
Of rural lovers this confession carv'd,
Which soon her DAMON kiss'd with weeping joy:
"Dear youth! sole judge of what these verses
"mean,

- " By fortune too much favour'd, but by love,
- " Alas! not favour'd less, be still as now
- " Discreet: the time may come you need not fly ".

^{*} Highgate and Hamflead,

In lovely contrast to this glorious view Calmly magnificent, then will we turn To where the filver THAMES first rural grows. There let the feafted eye unwearied ftray : Luxurious, there, rove thro' the pendant woods That nodding hang o'er HARRIGTON's retreat; And, flooping thence to Ham's embowering walks. Beneath whose shades, in spotless peace retir'd, With HER the pleasing partner of his heart, The worthy QUEENSB'RY yet laments his GAY. And polish'd CORNBURY Wooes the willing Mufe. Slow let us trace the matchless VALE OF THAMES: Fair-winding up to where the Muses haunt In Twit'nam's bowers, and for their Pope implore The healing God *; to royal Hampton's pile. To Clermont's terrafs'd height, and Esher's groves. Where in the fweetest folitude, embrac'd By the foft windings of the filent Mole, From courts and fenates PELHAM finds repofe. Inchanting vale! beyond whate'er the Muse Has of Achaia or Hesperia fung! O vale of blifs! O foftly-fwelling hills! On which the Power of Cultivation lies , And joys to fee the wonders of his toil. Heavens! what a goodly prospect spreads around, Of hills, and dales, and woods, and lawns, and fpires ,

The firetching landskip into smoke decays!

Happy BRITANNIA! where the QUEEN OF ARTS,
Inspiring vigour, LIBERTY abroad

Walks, unconfin'd, even to thy farthest cotts,
And scatters plenty with unsparing hand.

Rich is thy foil, and merciful thy clime;
Thy streams unfailing in the Summer's drought;
Unmatch'd thy guardian oaks; thy valleys float
With golden waves: and on thy mountains flocks
Bleat numberless; while, roving round their fides,
Bellow the blackening herds in lusty droves.
Beneath, thy meadows glow, and rise unquell'd
Against the mower's scythe. On every hand
Thy villas shine. Thy country teems with wealth;
And property assures it to the swain,
Pleas'd, and unwearied, in his guarded toil.

Full are thy cities with the fons of art;
And trade and joy, in every bufy street,
Mingling are heard: even Drudgery himself,
As at the car he sweats, or dusty hews
The palace-stone, looks gay. Thy crouded ports,
Where rising masts an endless prospect yield,
With labour burn, and echo to the shouts
Of hurried sailor, as he hearty waves
His last adieu, and loosening every sheet,
Resigns the spreading vessel to the wind.

Sincere, plain-hearted, hospitable, kind;
Yet like the mustering thunder when provok'd,
The dread of tyrants, and the sole resource
Of those that under grim oppression groan.

Thy Sons of GLORY many ! ALFRED thine, In whom the splendor of heroic war, And more heroic peace, when govern'd well, Combine; whose hallowed name the virtues faint. And his own Muses love; the best of Kings! With him thy EDWARDS and thy HENRYS shine, Names dear to Fame; the first who deep impress'd On haughty Gaul the terror of thy arms, That awes her genius still. In Statesmen thou, And Patriots, fertile. May my fong foften, as thy DAUGHTERS I, BRITANNIA, hail! for beauty is their own, The feeling heart, simplicity of life,
And elegance, and taste: the faultless form,
Shap'd by the hand of harmony; the cheek,
Where the live crimson, thro' the native white
Sost-shooting, o'er the face diffuses bloom,
And every nameless grace; the parted lip,
Like the red rose-bud moist with morning-dew,
Breathing delight; and, under flowing jet,
Or sunny ringlets, or of circling brown,
The neck slight-shaded, and the swelling breast;
The look resistless, piercing to the soul,
And by the soul inform'd, when dress in love
She sits high-smiling in the conscious eye.

Island of blifs! amid the subject seas,

That thunder round thy rocky coasts, set up,

At once the wonder, terror, and delight,

Of distant nations; whose remotest shores

Can soon be shaken by thy naval arm;

Not to be shook thyself, but all assaults

Baffling, as thy hoar cliffs the loud sea-wave.

O THOU! hy whose almighty Nod the scale
Of empire rises, or alternate falls,
Send forth the saving VIRTUES round the land,
In bright patrol: white Peace, and social Love;
The tender-looking Charity, intent
On gentle deeds, and shedding tears thro' smiles;
Undaunted Truth, and Dignity of mind;
Courage compos'd, and keen; sound Temperance,
Healthful in heart and look; clear Chassity,

With blushes reddening as she moves along, Disordered at the deep regard she draws; Rough Industry; Adivity untir'd, With copious life inform'd, and all awake: While in the radiant front, superior shines That first paternal virtue, Public Zeal; Who throws o'er all an equal wide survey, And, ever musing on the common weal, Still labours glorious with some great design,

Low walks the fun, and broadens by degrees,
Just o'er the verge of day. The shifting clouds
Assembled gay, a richly-gorgeous train,
In all their pomp attend his setting throne.
Air, earth, and ocean smile immense. And now,
As if his weary chariot sought the bowers
Of Amphitrite, and her tending nymphs,
(So Greeian sable sung), he dips his orb;
Now half-immers'd; and now a golden curve
Gives one bright glance, then total disappears,

For ever running an enchanted round,
Paffes the day, deceitful, vain, and void;
As fleets the vision o'er the formful brain,
This moment hurrying wild th' impaffion'd soul,
The next in nothing lost. 'Tis so to him,
The dreamer of this earth, an idle blank:
A fight of horror to the cruel wretch,
Who all day long in fordid pleasure roll'd,
Himself an useless load, has squander'd vile,
Upon his scoundrel train, what might have chear'd

A drooping family of modest worth.

But to the generous still-improving mind,

That gives the hopeless heart to sing for joy,

Diffusing kind beneficence around,

Boastless, as now descends the silent dew;

To him the long review of order'd life

Is inward rapture, only to be felt,

Confess'd from yonder flow-extinguish'd clouds. All ether foftening, fober Evening takes Her wonted station in the middle air : A thousand shadows at her beck. First this She fends on earth; then that of deeper dye Steals foft behind; and then a deeper still. In circle following circle, gathers round, To close the face of things. A fresher gale Begins to wave the wood, and ftir the ftream. Sweeping with shadowy gust the fields of corn; While the quail clamours for his running mate. Wide o'er the thiftly lawn, as fwells the breeze. A whitening shower of vegetable down Amusive floats. The kind impartial care Of Nature nought disdains : thoughtful to feed Her lowest fons, and clothe the coming year, From field to field the feathered feeds she wings.

His folded flock secure, the shepherd home Hies, merry-hearted; and by turns relieves The ruddy milk-maid of her brimming pail; The beauty whom perhaps his witless heart, Unknowing what the joy-mixt anguish means. Sincerely loves, by that best language shewn Of cordial glances, and obliging deeds.
Onward they pass, o'er many a panting height, And valley sunk, and unfrequented; where At fall of eve the fairy people throng, In various game, and revelry, to pass The summer night, as village-stories tell. But far about they wander from the grave Of him, whom his ungentle fortune urg'd Against his own sad breast to lift the hand Of impious violence. The lonely tower Is also shun'd; whose mournful chambers hold, So night-struck Fancy dreams, the yelling ghost.

Among the crooked lanes, on every hedge, The glow-worm lights his gem; and, thro' the dark, A moving radiance twinkles. Evening yields The world to Night; not in her winter-robe Of maffy Stygian woof, but loofe array'd In mantle dun. A faint erroneous ray, Glanc'd from th' imperfect furfaces of things, Flings half an image on the straining eye; While wavering woods, and villages, and ftreams, And rocks, and mountain-tops, that long retain'd Th' ascending gleam, are all one fwimming scene, Uncertain if beheld. Never to die! the treasure of mankind!

Without thee what were unenlightened Man ? A favage roaming thro' the woods and wilds, In quest of prey; and with th' unfashioned furr Rough-clad; devoid of every finer art, And elegance of life, Nor happiness Domestic, mix'd of tenderness and care. Nor moral excellence, nor focial blifs, Nor guardian law were his; nor various skill To turn the furrow, or to guide the tool Mechanic; nor the heaven-conducted prow Of navigation bold, that fearless braves The burning line, or dares the wintry pole; Mother severe of infinite delights! Nothing, fave rapine, indolence, and guile, And woes on woes, a fill-revolving train! Whose horrid circle had made human life Than non-existence worse: but, taught by thee. Ours are the plans of policy, and peace; To live like brothers, and conjunctive all Embellish life. The ARGUMENT.

The fubject proposed. Addressed to Mr. ONSLOW. A prospect of the fields ready for harvest. Reflections in praise of industry raised by that view. Reaping. A tale relative to it. A harvest storm. Shooting and hunting, their barbarity. A ludicrous account of foxhunting. A view of an orchard. Wall-frait. A vineyard. A description of fogs frequent in the latter part of Autumn : whence a digression, enquiring into the rife of fountains and rivers. Birds of feason confidered, that now shift their habitation. The prodigious number of them that cover the northern and western istes of SCOTLAND. Hence a view of the country. A prospect of the discoloured, fading woods. After a gentle dusky day, moon-light. Autumnal meteors. Morning: to which succeeds a calm, pure, fun-shiny day, fuch as usually shuts up the season. The harvest being gathered in, the country dissolved in joy. The whole concludes with a panegyric on a philosophical country life.

CROWN'D with the fickle and the wheaten sheaf, While AUTUMN, nodding o'er the yellow plain, Comes jovial on; the Doric reed once more, Well pleas'd, I tune. Whate'er the Wintry frost Nitrous prepar'd; the various-blossom'd Spring Put in white promise forth; and Summer-suns Concocted strong, rush boundless now to view, Full, perfect all, and swell my glorious theme.

Onflow! the Muse, ambitious of thy name,
To grace, inspire, and dignify her song,
Would from the Public Voice thy gentle ear
A while engage. Thy noble cares she knows;
The patriot virtues that distend thy thought,
Spread on thy front, and in thy bosom glow;
While listening senates hang upon thy tongue,
Devolving thro' the maze of eloquence
A roll of periods, sweeter than her song,
But she too pants for public virtue, she,
Tho' weak of power, yet strong in ardent will,
Whene'er her country rushes on her heart,
Assumes a bolder note, and fondly tries
To mix the patriot's with the poet's stame.

From heaven's high cope the fierce effulgence shook

Of parting Summer, a ferener blue, With golden light enlivened, wide invests The happy world. Attemper'd funs arise. Sweet-beam'd, and shedding of thro' lucid clouds A pleafing calm; while broad, and brown, below Extensive harvests hang the heavy head. Rich, filent, deep, they fland; for not a gale Rolls its light billows o'er the bending plain: A calm of plenty! till the ruffled air Falls from its poife, and gives the breeze to blow. Rent is the fleecy mantle of the sky; The clouds fly different; and the fudden fun By fits effulgent gilds th' illumin'd field, And black by fits the shadows fweep along. A gaily-checker'd heart-expanding view, Far as the circling eye can shoot around, Unbounded toffing in a flood of corn.

THESE are thy bleffings, INDUSTRY! rough power!
Whom labour still attends, and sweat, and pain;
Yet the kind source of every gentle art,
And all the soft civility of life:
Raiser of human kind! by Nature cast,
Naked, and helpless, out amid the woods
And wilds, to rude inclement elements;
With warious seeds of art deep in the mind
Implanted, and profusely pour'd around
Materials infinite; but idle all.
Still unexerted, in th' unconscious breast,
Slept the lethargic powers; corruption still,

Voracious, swallowed what the liberal hand Of bounty fcatter'd o'er the favage year: And fill the fad barbarian, roving, mix'd With beafts of prey; or for his acorn-meal Fought the fierce tusky boar; a shivering wretch! Aghaft, and comfortless, when the bleak north, With Winter charg'd, let the mix'd tempest fly Hail, rain, and fnow, and bitter-breathing froft: Then to the shelter of the hut he fled; " And the wild feafon, fordid, pin'd away. For home he had not; home is the refort Of love, of joy, of peace and plenty, where, Supporting and supported, polish'd friends, And dear relations mingle into blifs. But this the rugged favage never felt, Even defolate in crouds; and thus his days Roll'd heavy, dark, and unenjoy'd along: A waste of time! till INDUSTRY approach'd, And rous'd him from his miferable floth: His faculties unfolded; pointed out, Where lavish Nature the directing hand Of Art demanded; shew'd him how to raife His feeble force by the mechanic powers, To dig the mineral from the vaulted earth, On what to turn the piercing rage of fire, On what the torrent, and the gather'd blaft; Gave the tall ancient forest to his ax; Taught him to chip the wood, and hew the stone, Till by degrees the finish'd fabric rofe;

Tore from his limbs the blood-polluted fur,
And wrapt them in the woolly vestment warm,
Or bright in glossy silk, and flowing lawn;
With wholesome viands fill'd his table, pour'd
The generous glass around, inspir'd to wake
The life-resining soul of decent wit:
Nor stopp'd at barren bare necessity;
But still advancing bolder, led him on
To pomp, to pleasure, elegance and grace;
And, breathing high ambition thro' his soul,
Set science, wisdom, glory; in his view,
And bade him be the Lord of all below.

Then gathering men their natural powers comAnd form'd a Public; to the general good (bin'd,
Submitting, aiming, and conducting all.
For this the Patriot-Council met, the full,
The free, and fairly represented Who'e;
For this they plann'd the holy guardian laws,
Distinguish'd orders, animated arts,
And with joint force Oppression chaining, set
Imperial Justice at the helm; yet still
To them accountable: nor stavish dream'd
That toiling millions must resign their weal,
And all the honey of their search, to such
As for themselves alone themselves have rais'd,

Hence every form of cultivated life
In order fet, protected, and inspir'd,
Into perfection wrought. Uniting all,
Society grew numerous, high, polite,

And happy. Nurse of art! the city rear'd
In beauteous pride her tower-encircled head;
And, firetching street on street, by thousands drew.
From twining woody haunts, or the tough yew
To bows strong-straining, her aspiring sons.

Then Commerce brought into the public walk The bufy merchant; the big ware-house built; Rais'd the ftrong crane; choak'd up the loaded ftreet With foreign plenty; and thy stream, O THAMES. Large, gentle, deep, majeftic, king of floods! Chose for his grand refort, On either hand, Like a long wintry forest, groves of masts Shot up their spires; the bellying sheet between Poffes'd the breezy void; the footy hulk Steer'd fluggish on; the splendid barge along Row'd, regular, to harmony; around, The boat, light-skimming, ftretch'd its oary wings: While deep the various voice of fervent toil (oak. From bank to bank increas'd; whence ribb'd with To bear the BRITISH THUNDER, black, and bold. The roaring veffel rush'd into the main.

Then too the pillar'd dome, magnific, heav'd
Its ample roof; and Luxury within
Pour'd out her glittering flores: the canvas fmooth,
With glowing life protuberant, to the view
Embodied rofe; the flatue feem'd to breathe,
And foften into flesh, beneath the touch
Of forming art, imagination-flush'd.

All is the gift of INDUSTRY; whate'er

Exalts, embellishes, and renders life
Delightful. Pensive Winter chear'd by him
Sits at the focial fire, and happy hears
Th' excluded tempest idly rave along;
His harden'd fingers deck the gaudy Spring;
Without him Summer were an arid waste;
Nor to th' Autumnal months could thus transmit
Those full, mature, immeasurable stores,
That, waving round, recall my wandering song.

Soon as the morning trembles o'er the sky. And, unperceiv'd, unfolds the spreading day; Before the ripened field the reapers stand, In fair array; each by the lass he loves, To bear the rougher part, and mitigate By nameless gentle offices her toil, At once they floop and swell the lufty sheaves: While thro' their chearful band the rural talk. The rural scandal, and the rural jest, Fly harmless, to deceive the tedious time. And steal unfelt the fultry hours away. Behind the mafter walks, builds up the shocks; And, conscious, glancing oft on every fide His fated eye, feels his heart heave with joy. The gleaners spread around, and here and there, Spike after spike, their scanty harvest pick, Be not too narrow, husbandmen! but fling From the full sheaf, with charitable flealth, The liberal handful. Think, oh grateful think! How good the God of HARVEST is to you;

Who pours abundance o'er your flowing fields; While these unhappy partners of your kind Widerhover round you, like the sowls of heaven. And ask their humble dole. The various turns Of fortune ponder; that your sons may want What now, with hard reluctance, faint, ye give.

The lovely young LAVINIA once had friends And fortune smil'd, deceitful, on her birth. For, in her helpless years depriv'd of all, Of every flay, fave Innocence and HEAVEN. She, with her widow'd mother, feeble, old, And poor, liv'd in a cottage, far retir'd Among the windings of a woody vale; By folitude and deep furrounding shades. But more by bashful modesty, conceal'd. Together thus they shunn'd the cruel fcorn Which virtue, funk to poverty, would meet From giddy passion and low-minded pride: Almost on Nature's common bounty fed; Like the gay birds that fung them to repose, Content, and careless of to-morrow's fare. Her form was fresher than the morning rofe, When the dew wets its leaves ; unstain'd, and pure As is the lily, or the mountain fnow, The modest virtues mingled in her eyes, Still on the ground dejected, darting all Their humid beams into the blooming flowers: Or when the mournful tale her mother told, Of what her faithless fortune promis'd once,

Thrill'd in her thought, they, like the dewy flar Of evening, shone in tears. A native grace Sat fair-proportion'd on her polish'd limbs. Veil'd in a fimple robe, their best attire, Beyond the pomp of dress; for loveliness Needs not the foreign aid of ornament, But, is when unadorn'd, adorn'd the most. Thoughtless of beauty, she was beauty's felf. Recluse amid the close-embowering woods. As in the hollow breast of Appenine. Beneath the shelter of encircling hills, A myrtle rifes, far from human eye. And breathes its balmy fragrance o'er the wild So flourish'd blooming, and unfeen by all, The fweet LAVINIA; till, at length, compell'd By ftrong Necessity's supreme command, With smiling patience in her looks, she went To glean PALEMON's fields. The pride of fwains PALEMON was, the generous, and the rich; Who led the rural life in all its joy And elegance, fuch as Arcadian fong Transmits from ancient uncorrupted times; When tyrant cuftom had not shackled Man. But free to follow Nature was the mode. He then, his fancy with autumnal scenes Amufing, chanc'd befide his reaper-train To walk, when poor LAVINIA drew his eye; Unconscious of her power, and turning quick With unaffected blushes from his gaze;

He faw her charming, but he faw not half
The charms her down-cast modesty conceal'd.
That very moment love and chaste desire
Sprung in his besom, to himself unknown;
For still the world prevail'd, and its dread laugh;

When, strict enquiring, from herself he found She was the same, the daughter of his friend, Of bountiful ACASTO; who can speak The mingled passions that surprized his heart, And thro' his nerves in shivering transport ran?

Then blaz'd his smother'd flame, avow'd, and bold; And as he view'd her, ardent, o'er and o'er, Love, gratitude, and pity wept at once. Confus'd, and frightened at his sudden tears, Her rising beauties flush'd a higher bloom, As thus PALEMON, passionate and just, Pour'd out the pious rapture of his soul.

" And art thou then ACASTO's dear remains?

But as the aerial tempest fuller swells. And in one mighty stream, invisible. Immense, the whole excited atmosphere. Impetuous rushes o'er the founding world: Strain'd to the root, the stooping forest pours A rufling shower of yet untimely leaves. High-beat, the circling mountains eddy in. From the bare wild, the diffipated fform, And fend it in a torrent down the vale. Expos'd, and naked, to its utmost rage, Thro' all the fea of harvest rolling round . The billowy plain floats wide; nor can evade; Tho' pliant to the blaft, its feizing force; Or whirl'd in air, or into vacant chaff Shook wafte. And sometimes too a burst of rain: Swept from the black horizon, broad, descends In one continuous flood. Still over head The mingling tempest weaves its gloom, and still The deluge deepens; till the fields around Lie funk, and flatted, in the fordid wave. Sudden, the ditches swell; the meadows swim, Red, from the hills, innumerable streams Tumultuous roar; and high above its banks The river lift; before whose rushing tide, Herds, flocks, and harvefls, cortages, and fwains, Roll mingled down; all that the winds had spar'd In one wild moment ruin'd; the big hopes, And well-earn'd treasures of the painful year. Fled to fome eminence, the husbandman

Helpless beholds the miserable wreck
Driving along; his drowning ox at once
Descending, with his labours scatter'd round,
He sees; and instant o'er his shivering thought
Comes Winter unprovided, and a train
Of clamant children dear. Ye masters, then,
Be mindful of the rough laborious hand,
That sinks you soft in elegance and ease;
Be mindful of those limbs in russet clad
Whose toil to yours is warmth, and graceful pride;
And, oh! be mindful of that sparing board,
Which covers yours with luxury profuse,
Makes your glass sparkle, and your sense rejoice!
Not cruelly demand what the deep rains,
And all-involving winds have swept away.

Here the rude clamour of the sportsman's joy,
The gun fast-thundering, and the winded horn,
Would tempt the Muse to sing the rural Game:
How, in his mid-career, the spaniel struck,
Stiff, by the tainted gale, with open nose,
Outstretch'd, and sinely sensible, draws full,
Fearful, and cautious, on the latent prey;
As in the sun the circling covey bask
Their varied plumes, and watchful every way,
Thro' the rough stubble turn the secret eye.
Caught in the meshy snare, in vain they beat
Their idle wings, intangled more and more:
Nor on the surges of the boundless air,
Tho' borne triumphant, are they safe; the gun,

Wounded, and wheeling various, down the wind. These are not subjects for the peaceful Muse. Nor will she flain with fuch her fpotless fong; Then most delighted, when she focial sees The whole mix'd animal-creation round Alive, and happy. 'Tis not joy to her, This falfely-chearful barbarous game of death; This rage of pleafure, which the restless youth Awakes, impatient, with the gleaming morn; When beafts of prey retire, that all night long, Urg'd by necessity, had rang'd the dark, As if their conscious ravage shun'd the light, Asham'd. Against the breeze he darts, that way the more To leave the leffening murderous cry behind: Deception short! tho' fleeter than the winds Blown o'er the keen-air'd mountain by the north . He burfts the thickets, glances thro' the glades, And plunges deep into the wildest wood: If flow, yet fure, adhesive to the track Hot-steaming, up behind him come again Th' inhuman rout, and from the shady depth Expel him, circling thro' his every shift. He sweeps the forest oft; and sobbing sees The glades, mild opening to the golden day; Where, in kind contest, with his butting friends He wont to ftruggle, or his loves enjoy. Oft in the full-descending flood he tries To lofe the fcent, and lave his burning fides: Oft feeks the herd; the watchful herd, alarm'd, With felfish care avoid a brother's woe. What shall he do? His once fo vivid nerves. So full of buoyant spirit, now no more Inspire the course; but fainting breathless toil, Sick, feizes on his heart : he flands at bay ; And puts his last weak refuge in despair. The big round tears run down his dappled face; He groans in anguish; while the growling pack, Blood-happy, hang at his fair jutting cheft, 'And mark his beauteous checker'd fides with gore,

Of this enough. But if the filvan youth, Whose fervent blood boils into violence,

Must have the chace; behold, despising slight,
The rous'd-up lion, resolute, and slow,
Advancing full on the protended spear,
And coward-band, that circling wheel aleos.
Slunk from the cavern, and the troubled wood,
See the grim wolf; on him his shaggy foe
Vindictive fix, and let the russian die:
Or, growling horrid, as the brindled boar
Grins sell destruction, to the monster's heart
Let the dart lighten from the nervous arm.

Thefe BRITAIN knows not; give , ye BRITONS, Your sportive fury, pityles, to pour (then Loofe on the nightly robber of the fold: Him, from his craggy winding haunts unearth'd, Let all the thunder of the chace purfue. Throw the broad ditch behind you; o'er the hedge High-bound, refiftless; nor the deep morals Refuse, but thro' the shaking wilderness Pick your nice way; into the perilous flood Bear fearless, of the raging instinct full; And as you ride the torrent, to the banks Your triumph found fonorous, running round, From rock to rock, in circling echos toft; Then scale the mountains to their woody tops; Rush down the dangerous steep; and o'er the lawn, In fancy swallowing up the space between, Pour all your speed into the rapid game, For happy he! who tops the wheeling chace; Has every maze evolv'd, and every guile

Disclos'd; who knows the merits of the pack;
Who saw the villain seiz'd, and dying hard,
Without complaint, tho' by and hundred mouths
Relentless torn: O glorious he, beyond
His daring peers! when the retreating horn
Calls them to ghostly halls of grey renown,
With woodland honours grac'd; the fox's fur,
Depending decent from the roof; and spread
Round the drear walls, with antick sigures sierce,
The stag's large front: he then is loudest heard,
When the night staggers with severer toils,
With seats Thesalian Centaurs never knew,
And their repeated wonders shake the dome.

But first the fuel'd chimney blazes wide; The tankards foam; and the ftrong table groans Beneath the fmoaking firloin, ftretch'd immense From fide to fide; in which, with desperate knife, They deep incision make, and talk the while Of ENGLAND's glory, ne'er to be defaced While hence they borrow vigour : or amain Into the pasty plung'd, at intervals, If flomach keen can intervals allow, Relating all the glories of the chace. Then fated Hunger bids his brother Thirst Produce the mighty bowl; the mighty bowl, Swell'd high with fiery juice, fleams liberal round A potent gale, delicious, as the breath Of Maia to the love-fick shepherdess, On violets diffus'd while foft she hears

Her panting shepherd stealing to her arms.

Nor wanting is the brown October, drawn,

Mature and perfect, from his dark retreat

Of thirty years; and now his honest front

Flames in the light refulgent, not asraid

Even with the vineyard's best produce to vie.

To cheat the thirsty moments, whist a while

Walks his dull round, beneath a cloud of smoak,

Wreath'd, fragrant, from the pipe; or the quick

In thunder leaping from the box, awake (dice,

The sounding gammon: while romp-loving miss

Is haul'd about, in gallantry robust.

At last these puling idlenesses laid Afide, frequent and full, the dry divan Close in firm circle; and fet, ardent, in For ferious drinking. Mean-time, with sudden interruption, loud, Th' impatient catch burfts from the joyous heart; That moment touch'd is every kindred foul; And, opening in a full-mouth'd Cry of joy,

Lie quite diffolv'd. Before their maudlin eyes, Seen dim, and blue, the double tapers dance, Like the fun wading thro' the mifty sky. Then, fliding foft, they drop. Confus'd above, Glaffes and bottles, pipes and gazetteers, As if the table even itself was drunk, Lie a wet broken fcene; and wide, below, Is heap'd the focial flaughter: where aftride The lubber Power in filthy triumph fits, Slumbrous; inclining still from fide to fide. And fleeps them drench'd in potent fleep till morn, Perhaps some doctor, of tremendous paunch, Awful and deep, a black abyss of drink, Out-lives them all; and from his bury'd flock Retiring, full of rumination fad, Laments the weakness of these latter times.

But if the rougher sex by this fierce sport
Is hurried wild, let not such horrid joy
E'er stain the bosom of the BRITISH FAIR.
Far be the spirit of the chace from them!
Uncomely courage, unbeseming skill;
To spring the sence, to sein the prancing steed;

Where, down you dale, the wildly winding brook
Falls hoarse from steep to steep. In close array,
Fit for the thickets and the tangling shrub,
Ye virgins come. For you their latest song
The woodlands raise; the clustering nuts for you

١,

In this glad season, while his sweetest beams
The sun sheds equal o'er the meekened day;
Oh lose me in the green delightful walks
Of, Dodington, thy seat, serene and plain;
Where simple Nature reigns; and every view,
Distusive, spreads the pure Dorsetian downs,
In boundless prospect; yonder shagg'd with wood,
Here rich with harvest, and there white with flocks!

Mean time the grandeur of thy lofty dome,

Far-splendid, seizes on the ravish'd eye.

New beauties rife with each revolving day;

New columns (well; and still the fresh Spring finds

New plants to quicken, and new groves to green. Full of thy genius all! the Muses' seat : Where in the fecret bower, and winding walk. For virtuous Young and thee they twine the bay. Here wandering oft, fir'd with the reftless thirst Of thy applause, I solitary court Th' inspiring breeze: and meditate the book Of Nature ever open; aiming thence, Warm from the heart, to learn the moral fong. Here, as I fteal along the funny wall, Where Autumn basks, with fruit empurpled deep, My pleasing theme continual prompts my thought: Presents the downy peach; the shining plum; The ruddy, fragrant nectarine; and dark, Beneath his ample leaf, the luscious fig. The vine too here her curling tendrils shoots Hangs out her clusters, glowing to the fouth; And scarcely wishes for a warmer sky.

Turn we a moment Fancy's rapid flight.

To vigorous foils, and climes of fair extent;

Where, by the potent fun elated high,

The vineyard fwells refulgent on the day;

Spreads o'er the vale; or up the mountain climbs,

Profuse; and drinks amid the sunny rocks,

From cliff to cliff encreas'd, the heightened blaze,

Low bend the weighty boughs. The clusters clear,

Half thro' the foliage seen, or ardent flame,

As thus they brighten with exalted juice,
Touch'd into flavour by the mingling ray;
The rural youth and virgins o'er the field;
Each fond for each to cull th' autumnal prime,
Exulting rove, and speak the vintage nigh.
Then comes the crushing swain; the country floats,
And foams unbounded with the mashy flood;
That by degrees fermented, and refin'd,
Round the rais'd nations pours the cup of joy:
The Claret smooth, red as the lip we press
In sparkling fancy, while we drain the bowl;
The mellow-tasted Burgundy; and quick,
As is the wit it gives, the gay Champaign.

Now, by the cool declining year condens'd,
Descend the copious exhalations, check'd
As up the middle sky unseen they stole,
And roll the doubling fogs around the hill.
No more the mountain, horrid, vast, sublime,
Who pours a sweep of rivers from his sides,
And high between contending kingdoms rears.
The rocky long division, fills the view
With great variety; but in a night
Of gathering vapour, from the bassled sense
Sinks dark and dreary. Thence expanding far,
The huge dusk, gradual, swallows up the plain:
Vanish the woods; the dim-seen river seems
Sullen, and slow, to roll the misty wave.

The feathered eddy floats: rejoicing once,
Ere to their wintry slumbers they retire;
In clusters clung, beneath the mouldring bank,
And where, unpierc'd by frost, the cavern sweats,

When Summer reddens, and when Autumn beams; Or in the Wintry glebe whatever lies Conceal'd, and fattens with the richeft fap: These are not wanting; nor the milky drove, Luxuriant, fpread o'er all the lowing vale; Nor bleating mountains; nor the chide of fireams, And hum of bees, inviting fleep fincere Into the guiltless breast, beneath the shade, Or thrown at large amid the fragrant hay; Nor ought besides of prospect, grove, or fong Dim grottoes, gleaming lakes, and fountain clear. Here too dwells simple truth; plain innocence; Unfullied beauty; found unbroken youth, Patient of labour, with a little pleas'd; Health ever blooming; unantitious toil; Calm contemplation, and poetic eafe.

Let others brave the flood in quest of gain,
And beat, for joyless months, the gloomy wave.
Let such as deem it glory to destroy,
Rush into blood, the sack of cities seek;
Unpierc'd, exulting in the widow's wail,
The virgin's shriek, and infant's trembling cry.
Let some, far-distant from their native soil,
Urg'd or by want or hardened avarice,
Find other lands beneath another sun.
Let this thro' cities work his eager way,
By legal outrage and establish'd guile,
The social sense extinct; and that ferment
Mad into tumult the seditious herd,

Or melt them down to flavery. Let thefe Infnare the wretched in the toils of law, Fomenting discord, and perplexing right, An iron race! and those of fairer front, But equal inhumanity, in courts, Delusive pomp, and dark cabals, delight; Wreathe the deep bow, diffuse the lying fmile, And tread the weary labyrinth of flate. While he from all the stormy passions free That reftless Men involve, hears, and but hears, At distance safe, the human tempest roar, Wrapt close in conscious peace. The fall of kings, The rage of nations, and the crush of states, Move not the Man, who, from the world escap'd, In still retreats, and flowery folitudes, To Nature's voice attends, from month to month, And day to day, thro' the revolving year; Admiring, fees her in her every shape; Feels all her fweet emotions at his heart; Takes what she liberal gives, nor thinks of more, He, when young Springprotrudes the burstinggems, Marks the first bud, and fucks the healthful gale Into his freshened foul; her genial hours He full enjoys; and not a beauty blows, And not an opening bloffom breathes in vain-In Summer he, beneath the living shade, Such as o'er frigid Tempe wont to wave, Or Hemus cool, reads what the Muse, of these Perhaps, has in immortal numbers fung;

Or what she dictates writes: and oft, an eye Shot round, rejoices in the vigorous year. When Autumn's yellow lustre gilds the world. And tempts the fickled fwain into the field, Seiz'd by the general joy, his heart distends With gentle throws; and, thro' the tepid gleams Deep musing, then he best exerts his song. Even Winter wild to him is full of bliss. The mighty tempest, and the hoary waste, Abrupt, and deep, firetch'd o'er the buried earth, Awake to folemn thought. At night the skies, Disclos'd, and kindled, by refining frost, Pour every lustre on th' exalted eye. A friend a book the flealing hours fecure, Andmark them down for wifdom. With fwift wing. O'er land and fea imagination roams; Or truth, divinely breaking on his mind, Elates his being, and unfolds his powers; Or in his breaft heroic virtue burns. The touch of kindred too and love he feels; The modest eye, whose beams on his alone Extatic shine; the little strong embrace Of prattling children, twin'd around his neck, And emulous to please him, calling forth The fond parental foul. Nor purpose gay, Amusement, dance, or fong, he sternly scorns; For happiness and true philosophy Are of the focial still, and smiling kind. This is the life which those who fret in guilt.

DEE. WINTER comes, to rule the varied year, Sullen and fad, with all his rifing train; Vapours, and Clouds, and Storms. Be these my theme. These! that exalt the foul to solemn thought, And heavenly mufing. Welcome, kindred glooms! Congenial horrors, hail! with frequent foot, Pleas'd have I, in my chearful morn of life, When nurs'd by careless solitude I liv'd, And fung of Nature with unceasing joy, Pleas'd have I wander'd thro' your rough domain $ Trod the pure virgin-fnows, myfelf as pure; Heard the winds roar, and the big torrent burft; Or feen the deep fermenting tempest brew'd. In the grim evening sky. Thus pass'd the time. Till thro' the lucid chambers of the fouth Look'd out the joyous Spring, look'd out, and To thee, the patron of her first effay, (fmil'd. The Muse, O WILMINGTON! renews her song. Since has she rounded the revolving year: Skim'd the gay Spring; on eagle-pinions borne, Attempted through the Summer-blaze to rife; Then fwept o'er Autumn with the shadowy gale; And now among the wintry clouds again, Roll'd in the doubling florm, she tries to foar; To fwell her note with all the rushing winds; To fuit her founding cadence to the floods;
As is her theme, her numbers wildly great:
Thrice happy! could she fill thy judging ear
With bold description, and with manly thought.
Nor art thou skill'd in awful schemes alone,
And how to make a mighty people thrive:
But equal goodness, sound integrity,
A firm unshaken uncorrupted soul
Amid a sliding age, and burning strong,
Not vainly blazing for thy country's weal,
A steady spirit regularly free;
These, each exalting each, the statesman light
Into the patriot; these, the public hope
And eye to thee converting, bid the Muse
Record what envy dares not slattery call.

Now when the chearless empire of the sky
To Capricorn the Centaur Archer yields,
And fierce Aquarius, stains th' inverted year;
Hung o'er the farthest verge of heaven, the sun
Scarce spreads thro' ether the dejected day.
Faint are his gleams, and ineffectual shoot
His struggling rays, in horizontal lines,
Thro' the thick air; as cloath'd in cloudy storm,
Weak, wan, and broad, he skirts the southern sky;
And, soon-descending, to the long dark night,
Wide-shading all, the prostrate world resigns.
Nor is the night unwish'd; while vital heat,
Light, life, and joy, the dubious day forsake.
Mean-time, in sable cincture, shadows vast,

The Eac To Or Deep-ting'd and damp, and congregated clouds, And all the vapoury turbulence of heaven, Involve the face of things. Thus Winter falls, A heavy gloom oppressive o'er the world, Thro' Nature shedding influence malign, And rouses up the seeds of dark disease. The foul of Man dies in him, loathing life, And black with more than melancholy views. The cattle droop; and o'er the furrowed land, Fresh from the plough, the dun discolour'd flocks, Untended spreading, crop the wholesome root. Along the woods, along the moorish fens, Sighs the fad Genius of the coming storm; And up among the loofe disjointed cliffs, And fractur'd mountains wild, the brawling brook And cave, prefageful, fend a hollow moan, Refounding long in liftening Fancy's ear.

THEN comes the father of the tempest forth,
Wrapt in black glooms. First joyless rains obscure
Drive thro' the mingling skies with vapour foul;
Dash on the mountain's brow, and shake the woods,
That grumbling wave below. The unsightly plain
Lies a brown deluge; as the low-bent clouds
Pour flood on flood, yet unexhausted still
Combine, and deepening into night shut up
The day's fair face. The wanderers of heaven,
Each to his home, retire; save those that love
To take their passime in the troubled air,
Or skimming flutter round the dimply pool.

The cattle from the untaited fields return,
And ask, with meaning lowe, their wonted stalls,
Or ruminate in the contiguous shade.
Thither the houshold feathery people crowd,
The crested cock, with all his female train,
Pensive, and dripping; while the cottage-hind
Hangs o'er th' enlivening blaze, and taleful there
Recounts his simple frolick: much he talks,
And much he laughs, nor recks the storm that blows
Without, and rattles on his humble roof.

Wide o'er the brim, with many a torrent swell'd,
And the mix'd ruin of its banks o'erspread,
At last the rous'd-up river pours along:
Resistless, roaring, dreadful, down it comes,
From the rude mountain, and the mossy wild,
Tumbling thro' rocks abrupt, and sounding far;
Then o'er the sanded valley floating spreads,
Calm, sluggish, silent; till again, constrain'd
Between two meeting hills, it bursts away,
Where rocks and woods o'erhang the turbid stream;
There gathering triple force, rapid, and deep,
It boils, and wheels, and soams, and thunders through,

Nature! great parent! whose unceasing hand Rolls round the Seasons of the changeful year, How mighty, how majestic, are thy works! With what a pleasing dread they swell the soul! That sees astonish'd! and astonish'd sings! Ye too, ye winds! that now begin to blow, With boisterous sweep, I raise my voice to you, In v

Nor less at land the loosened tempest reigns. The mountain thunders; and its flurdy fons Stoop to the bottom of the rocks they shade. Lone on the midnight fleep, and all aghaft, The dark way-faring stranger breathless toils, And, often falling, climbs against the blast. Low waves the rooted forest, vex'd, and sheds-What of its tarnish'd honours yet remain; Dash'd down, and scattered, by the tearing wind's Affiduous fury, its gigantic limbs. Walks dreadfully ferene, commands a calm; Then ftraight air fea and earth are hush'd at once.

As yet 'tis midnight deep. The weary clouds, Slow-meeting, mingle into fold gloom.

Let'me shake off th' intrusive cares of day,
And lay the meddling fenfes all aside.

Ye ever-tempting, ever-cheating train!
Where are you now? and what is your amount?
Vexation, disappointment, and remorfe.
Sad, fickening thought! and yet deluded Man,
A scene of crude disjointed visions past,
And broken slumbers, rises still resolv'd,
With new-flush'd hopes, to run the giddy round.

Father of light and life! thou GOOD SUPREME!
O teach me what is good! teach me THYSELF!
Save me from folly, vanity, and vice,
From every low pursuit! and feed my foul
With knowledge, conscious peace, and virue
Sacred, substantial, never-fading blis! (pure;

Of patriots, and of herees. But if doom'd. In powerless humble fortune, to repress These ardent risings of the kindling soul; Then, even superior to ambition, we Would learn the private virtues; how to glide Thro' shades and plains, along the smoothest stream Of rural life: or fnatch'd away by hope, Thro' the dim spaces of futurity, With earnest eye anticipate those scenes Of happiness, and wonder; where the mind, In endless growth and infinite ascent, Rifes, from state to state, and world to world. But when with these the serious thought is foil'd, We, shifting for relief, would play the shapes Of frolic fancy; and inceffant form Those rapid pictures, that assembled train Of fleet ideas, never join'd before, Whence lively Wit excites to gay furprize; Or folly-painting Humour, grave himfelf, Calls Laughter forth, deep-shaking every nerve. Mean-time the village rouzes up the fire;
While well attefted, and as well believ'd,
Heard folemn, goes the goblin-flory round;
Till superstitious horror creeps o'er all.
Or, frequent in the sounding hall, they vake
The rural gambol. Rustic mirth goes round;
The simple joke that takes the shepherd's heart,
Easily pleas'd; the long loud laugh, sincere;
The kiss, snatch'd hasty from the side-long maid,

On purpose guardless, or pretending sleep:
The leap, the slap, the haul; and, shook to notes
Of native music, the respondent dance.
Thus jocund fleets with them the winter-night.

On founding skates, a thousand different ways. In circling poise, swift as the winds, along, The then gay land is maddened all to joy.

Nor less the northern courts, wide o'er the snow, Pour a new pomp. Eager, on rapid sleds,

Their vigorous youth in bold contention wheel The long-resounding course. Mean-time, to raise The manly strife, with highly blooming charms, Flush'd by the season, Scandinavia's dames, Or Russia's buxon daughters glow around.

Pure, quick, and sportful, is the wholesome day;
But soon elaps'd. The horizontal sun,
Broad o'er the south, hangs at his utmost noon;
And, ineffectual, strikes the gelid cliff:
His azure gloss the mountain still maintains,
Nor seels the seeble touch. Perhaps the vale
Relents a while to the reflected ray;
Or from the forest salls the cluster'd snow,
Myriads of gems, that in the waving gleam
Gay-twinkle as they scatter. Thick around
Thunders the sport of those, who with the gun,
And dog impatient bounding at the shot,
Worse than the season, desolate the fields;
And, adding to the ruins of the year,
Distress the sooted or the seathered game.

But what is this? Our infant Winter links, in Divested of his grandeur, should our eye Astonished shoot into the Erigid Zone; where, for relentless months is continual night.

Immortal never-failing friend of Man. His guide to happiness on high. And see! Tis come, the glorious morn! the fecond birth Of heaven, and earth! awakening Nature hears The new creating word, and flarts to life, In every heightened form, from pain and death For ever free. The great eternal scheme, Involving all, and in a perfect whole Uniting, as the prospect wider spreads, To reason's eye refin'd clears up apace. Ye vainly wife! ye blind prefumptuous! now. Confounded in the duft, adore that POWER, And WISDOM oft arraign'd: fee now the caufe, Why unaffuming worth in fecret liv'd, And dy'd, neglected: why the good Man's share In life was gall and bitterness of foul: Why the lone widow and her orphans pin'd In flarving folitude; while luxury, In palaces, lay straining her low thought, To form unreal wants: why heaven-born truth, And moderation fair, wore the red marks Of fuperstition's scourge: why licens'd pain, That cruel spoiler, that embosom'd foe, Imbitter'd all our bliss. Ye good diftrest! Ye noble few! who here unbending stand Beneath life's pressure, yet bear up a while; And what your bounded view, which only faw A little part, deem'd Evil is no more: The florms of WINTRY TIME will quickly pais, And one unbounded SPRING encircle all,

MITHA

HYMN.

I HESE, as they change, ALMIGHTY FATHER. Are but the varied GoD. The rolling year (thefe , Is full of Thee. Forth in the pleafing Spring THY beauty walks, THY tenderness and love. Wide flush the fields; the foftening air is balm; Echo the mountains round; the forest smiles; And every fense, and every heart is joy. Then comes THY glory in the Summer-months, With light and heat refulgent. Then THY fun Shoots full perfection thro' the swelling year: And oft THY voice in dreadful thunder speaks; And oft at dawn, deep noon, or falling eve, By brooks and groves, in hollow-whifpering gales. THY bounty shines in Autumn unconfin'd, And spreads a common feast for all that lives. In Winter awful THOU! with clouds and fforms Around THEE thrown, tempest o'er tempest roll'd, Majestic darkness! on the whirlwind's wing, Riding fublime, THOU bidft the world adore. And humbleft Nature with THY northern blaft.

Mysterious round! what skill, what force divine Deep felt, in these appear! a simple train, Yet so delightful mix'd, with such kind art,

Such beauty and beneficence combin'd;
Shade, unperceiv'd, so softening into shade;
And all so forming an harmonious whole;
That, as they still succeed, they ravish still.
But wandering oft, with brute unconscious gaze,
Man marks not Thee, marks not the mighty hand,
That, ever-busy, wheels the filent spheres;
Work in the secret deep; shoots, steaming, thence
The fair profusion that o'erspreads the Spring:
Flings from the sun direct the slaming day;
Feeds every creature; hurls the tempest forth;
And, as on earth this grateful change revolves,
With transport touches all the springs of life.

Nature, attend! join every living foul, Beneath the spacious temple of the sky, In adoration join; and, ardent, raife One general fong! To Him, ye vocal gales, Breathe foft, whose Spirit in your freshness Oh talk of HIM in folitary glooms! (breathes: Where, o'er the rock, the scarcely waving pine Fills the brown shade with a religious awe. And ye, whose bolder note is heard afar, Who shake th' aftonish'd world, lift high to heaven Th' impetuous fong, and fay from whom you rage. His praise, ye brooks, attune, ye trembling rills; And let me catch it as I muse along. Ye headlong torrents, rapid, and profound; Ye fofter floods, that lead the humid maze Along the vale; and thou, majestic main,

A fecret world of wonders in thyfelf, Sound His stupendous praise; whose greater voice Or bids you roar, or bids your roarings fall. Soft-roll your incense, herbs, and fruits, and flowers.

Ye forests bend, ye harvests wave, to HIM; Breathe your still fong into the reaper's heart, As home he goes beneath the joyous moon. Ye that keep watch in heaven, as earth afleep Unconscious lies, effuse your mildest beams, Ye constellations, while your angels strike, Amid the spangled sky, the filver lyre. Great fource of day! best image here below Of thy Creator, ever pouring wide From world to world, the vital ocean round, On Nature write with every beam His praise. The thunder rolls : be hush'd the proftrate world; While cloud to cloud returns the folemn hymn. Bleat out afresh, ye hills : ye mosfy rocks, Retain the found: the broad responsive lowe, Ye valleys, raise; for the GREAT SHEPHERD And his unsuffering kingdom yet will come. (reigns, Ye woodlands all, awake: a boundless fong Burst from the groves ! and when the restless day . Expiring, lays the warbling world afleep, Sweetest of birds! sweet Philomela, charm

The liftening shades, and teach the night His praile. Ye chief, for whom the whole creation fmiles, At once the head, the heart, and tongue of all, Crown the great hymn! in fwarming cities vaft. Affembled men, to the deep organ join The long-refounding voice, oft-breaking clear, At folemn pauses, through the swelling base; And, as each mingling flame increases each, In one united ardor rife to heaven. Or if you rather chuse the rural shade, And find a fane in every facred grove; There let the shepherd's flute, the virgin's lay, The prompting feraph, and the poet's lyre, Still fing the GOD OF SEASONS, as they roll. For me, when I forget the darling theme, Whether the bloffom blows, the fummer-ray Ruffets the plain, inspiring Autumn gleams; Or Winter rifes in the blackening eaft; Be my tongue mute, my fancy paint no more, And, dead to joy, forget my heart to beat!

Should fate command me to the farthest verge Of the green earth, to distant barbarous climes, Rivers unknown to fong; where first the sun Gilds Indian mountains, or his setting beam Flames on th' Atlantic isles; 'tis nought to me: Since God is ever present, ever felt, In the void waste as in the city full; And where He vital breathes there must be joy. When even at last the solemn hour shall come.

And wing my mystic slight to suture worlds, I chearful will obey; there, with new powers, Will rising wonders sing: I cannot go Where UNIVERSAL LOVE not smiles around, Sustaining all you orbs, and all their sons; From seeming Evil still educing Good, And Better thence again, and Better still, In infinite progression. But I lose Myself in HIM, in LIGHT INEFFABLE; Come then, expressive silence, muse HIS praise?
